$1b bank scandal shocks Italians

ROME, June 19 (AFP) — A body in the Thames at London, a woman's suicide in Milan, the Vatican and a stockmarket crash emerged this weekend as the main elements in yet another major banking scandal here.

The bank is the Banco Ambrosiano — Italy's biggest private finance house, the body in the Thames was reported Saturday as belonging to the bank's missing president Roberto Calvi, and the suicide was his 55-year-old secretary Graziella Teresa Corrocher.

The Vatican connection lies through the bank's reported close links with the Institute for Religious Works known as "The Pope's Bank," and the stock market crash centers on a $1,400 million hole in the Ambrosiano accounts.

The story began to make headlines with Calvi's disappearance nine days ago. On the advice of the Bank of Italy, the treasury Thursday appointed a government commissioner Vincenzo Desario to run the bank which has assets worth more than $14,300 million.

Calvi, who had run the bank for 11 years was deprived by the board of all power — including the right to sign documents. The problems facing the commissioner are therefore extremely delicate, particularly as the shares this week lost 20 percent of their value in two days. Ambrosiano stock has been a driving force on the Milan Stock Market, but now its quotation has been suspended as 180,000 shareholders were preparing to offload their holdings.

On Thursday night, Miss Corrocher, who was Calvi's secretary for nine years, flung herself from the fourth floor of the bank's headquarters in Milan. She left a suicide note.

Calvi was believed to have fled abroad, probably to the United States, four days before new appeal court proceedings were brought against him for alleged illegal export of capital. In an earlier hearing he had been sentenced to four years in prison and was given a heavy fine.

But the banker might have disappeared for another reason. On May 31 the bank of Italy sent a report to the Ambrosiano board alleging that capital transfers made since 1974 by several Ambrosiano foreign subsidiaries were totally illegal. With these funds, raised on the European capital market, subsidiaries in Latin America and particularly in Panama, he allegedly bought five million Ambrosiano shares.

It is illegal for a company to buy its own shares and thus artificially hoist its share price, and the result was that the Ambrosiano bonus showed debts totalling $1,400 million owed by the foreign subsidiaries.

Some press reports here have described the scandal as being bigger and more damaging to the financial establishment than the collapse of the empire headed by Michele Sindona.

Sindona who mishandled Vatican finances and caused the failure of the American Franklin National Bank. He is now in prison in the United States, having disappeared for several weeks during court proceedings for fraudulent bankruptcy.

Both men were members of the mysterious propaganda two (P2) Masonic Lodge which included Fascist elements and listed influential figures from the armed forces secret service and other sections of the establishment among its membership. The discovery of this secret society, which was heavily implicated in financial fraud, and the disappearance of its leader Licio Gelli, caused the downfall of the government last year.

Empty rows mock Begin

UNITED NATIONS, June 19 (R) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin of Israel addressed rows of empty seats Friday as many delegates walked out of the General Assembly hall in protest against Israeli policy, including the invasion of Lebanon.

At the end of his statement, there was prolonged applause from Israel's supporters in the public gallery. Begin was the first speaker of the day and many delegates, including the Russians, simply did not turn up.

The United States had a full complement of representatives, headed by Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick.

HOMELESS: A small boy holds what remains of what was once a toy as he and his grandfather look for belongings in their destroyed home at the Rashidiyeh refugee camp, south of Tyre, north of the Lebanon-Israel border, Friday. Rashidiyeh until two weeks ago was a refugee camp with several thousand inhabitants. It was devastated when Israeli forces captured southern Lebanon last week.

Israelis land in N. Lebanon

BEIRUT, June 19 (AFP) — Israeli helicopter-borne troops landed on Dahr Al Qadib Ridge in north Lebanon early Saturday, 60 kms north of Beirut, reliable Lebanese sources said.

The landing area was near the road linking Tripoli, the major town in the area on the coast, with the Bekaa plain in central Lebanon. There were no details of the size of the Israeli forces landing in a region currently under the control of the Syrians of the Arab Deterrent Force, or its immediate objectives.

(Authoritative military sources in Tel Aviv immediately denied the reports of an Israeli landing. "We do not know who could have inspired such reports on a landing, but they did not happen," the sources added).

Over ending hostilities Argentina dashes U.K. hopes

LONDON, June 19 (R) — British hopes of an early end to the Falklands crisis faded Saturday after an Argentine statement that hostilities would end only when the United Kingdom withdraws its forces from the islands.

A spokesman for Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said there was no plan of pulling out the ships and troops from the recaptured South Atlantic islands this week.

Government officials said Britain was planning to hold on to about 1,000 key prisoners taken on the island until Argentina removed the threat of naval or air attack against the British force.

And now it's Gibraltar

LISBON, June 19 (AFP) — British Foreign Secretary Francis Pym will arrive here next Thursday for two days of talks on the future of Gibraltar with his Spanish counterpart Perez Llorca, the Portuguese weekly Expresso said Saturday.

Pym was also expected to meet Portuguese President Antonio Ramalho Eanes, the weekly said, quoting diplomatic sources as saying he would thank him for Portugal's support for Britain in the Falklands crisis.

The Gibraltar talks would take place at Sintra near Lisbon next Friday and Saturday, the weekly said. The last Anglo-Spanish meeting on Gibraltar was on January 8, when the two sides envisaged reopening communications between Gibraltar and the Spanish mainland in April. The move was subsequently postponed until June 25.

Habib continues efforts Palestinians dig in for crucial battle

BEIRUT, June 19 (R) — Palestinians planted mines on the approach roads to Beirut Saturday while politicians struggled to find a formula which could save the city from Israeli invasion.

With 24 hours to go before the expiry of a ceasefire tacitly agreed to by Israel, a new cloud of apprehension descended on the besieged Lebanese capital. A 48-hour ceasefire call by U.S. peace envoy Philip Habib expires at 1200 GMT Sunday and Lebanese leaders have been seeking a way to neutralize 5,000 to 6,000 Palestinian commandos trapped in the west and south of Beirut.

To the south of the city, near where heavy concentrations of Israeli armor have been waiting, Palestinians threw up earthworks and used road drills to dig holes to plant mines. Commandos in jeeps mounted with light anti-aircraft guns and rocket launchers sat anxiously. The few civilian cars cruising in the southern outskirts were repeatedly stopped at checkpoints.

Roads heading east were jammed with cars carrying families and their belongings to the relative safety of East Beirut. On the political front, intensive consultations continued over establishment of a "national salvation committee," which could deploy the Lebanese army to establish its authority over the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO). President Elias Sarkis held a flurry of meetings with senior politicians seeking agreement on the composition and powers on the proposed seven-man body. One obstacle fell away with the abandonment by nationalist leader Walid Jumblatt of his insistence on widening the committee membership, according to nationalist sources.

But a new snag emerged with objections from the Amal leader Nabih Berri, who suggested the committee idea should be scrapped and a unified national government formed instead.

The Israelis have not said what action they would take if Sunday's ceasefire deadline passes without any political agreement in Lebanon.

They have repeatedly declared that Israeli forces would not invade the heavily-populated areas of Beirut where street fighting could mean heavy Israeli as well as civilian casualties. Diplomatic sources here have said this pledge does not necessarily

More people pledge fealty Arafat denies PLO blunted

TAIF, June 19 (SPA) — King Fahd received a large number of citizens who pledged their loyalty to him and to Crown Prince Abdullah in this summer resort town Saturday.

He also received a number of foreign delegations who came to offer their condolences to him on the death of King Khaled and felicitations on his accession to the throne.

The delegations represented South Korea, Zambia, the Republic of China, Upper Volta, Greece, Singapore, Nepal, Austria, New Zealand, Chile.

BONN, June 19 (AP) — Palestine Liberation Organization Chairman Yasser Arafat was quoted Saturday as saying the Israeli sweep into Lebanon has done "much less damage" to his organization than the Israelis believe.

Despite this, Arafat was quoted as saying in an interview published in the Frankfurter Rundschau newspaper that he was ready to negotiate with Lebanese authorities on agreements to end the fighting in Lebanon.

Arafat was asked if the Israeli invasion had destroyed the PLO. "The Israelis have hit civilians, they have destroyed Lebanese territory and driven out about 10 to 15 percent of the population," Arafat was quoted as replying. "They have done much less damage to the PLO than they think. They have not even touched its infrastructure."

Interferon vanquishes cold

LONDON, June 19 (AP) — British scientists reported new evidence Friday that the anti-viral agent Interferon is effective against the common cold.

A report in the British Medical Journal said Interferon, which is currently undergoing extensive testing as an anti-cancer agent, proved effective in reducing both the likelihood of catching a cold and the severity of cold symptoms.

A study at Northwick Park Hospital and the Medical Research Council's cold unit at Salisbury was held with 19 volunteers divided into two groups.

One group was given a nasal spray with no active ingredient and the other was given a nasal spray with highly purified Interferon. Both groups were then exposed to a potent cold virus.

The scientists reported that five of those given Interferon escaped a cold completely and three others had very mild symptoms. In the non-Interferon group, one volunteer escaped a cold but seven others got moderate colds.

In the Interferon group, cold symptoms started an average of 5.2 days after exposure to the cold virus and lasted 4.5 days. In the non-Interferon group, cold symptoms started 2.4 days after exposure to the virus and lasted 9.2 days.

"How Interferon modified colds is not clear," the scientists said.

The scientists said Interferon "dramatically reduced" cold symptoms but did not completely prevent infection. "Possibly, Interferon only delayed the onset of the inevitable cold, but the limited evidence suggests that late colds were extremely mild," they said.

Such a move might also reduce the number of escorts who leave their occupations in Saudi Arabia to care for their relative. At times, the number of escorts exceeds 1,000. For the time being, the £5 to £10 a day are paid to the patients in Britain on a charity basis from donations by wealthy Saudi businessmen like Sheikh Salch Kamel and others. The office has lists for this purpose.

By boycott of Israel bureau

Renault blacklisted here

By Ahmad Shaaban
Arab News Staff

JEDDAH, June 19 — A major French auto manufacturer, Renault, was blacklisted here this week by the Commerce Ministry's Saudi Regional Boycott of Israel Bureau. The ban, publicized in the official gazette Ummul-Qura Saturday, applies to Regie Nationale des Usines Renault and all its subsidiaries. They include Renault U.K. Ltd., Renault U.S.A. Inc., and Automobiles Renault Canada Ltd.

At the same time, the bureau decided to continue the boycott of the Columbia Broadcasting System Inc. (CBS Inc.) and all its musical recordings under the brands Columbia, Columbia Mastermarks, Epic Odyssey and Portrait.

The ban likewise applies to all of the French Compagnie Technicon and its subsidiaries and branches all over the world, including its mother company Technicon Corp. of the U.S. and branches in Switzerland, Ireland, Venezuela, Mexico, Germany, Italy and other countries.

Other companies boycotted as of this week include the French dairy factory BSN Gervais Danone and its brand Vereco; and the Brazilian firm GTE Do Brasil S.A. and E. Com. and its six branches. The British company Industrial Engines (Sales) Ltd. also has been boycotted for using Ford diesel engines for its electric power generators. Desoto Chemical Boutings which changed to De Soto Inc. remains on the black list.

Kingdom to get Indian doctors

NEW DELHI, June 19 (AFP) — The Saudi Arabian government has recruited 350 Indian doctors this week to man new hospitals and dispensaries being built in the Kingdom, the PTI news agency reported Saturday.

The doctors, most of them specialists, were mainly recruited from the states of Bihar and Kashmir. It is the first time Saudi Arabia had taken such a large number of Indian doctors. Previously, it had contracted with doctors from Pakistan and Bangladesh.

Doctors from India had constantly been on the look out for jobs abroad because of better salaries offered. The rush to Middle East countries has been heavy, specially since the United States and Britain in the late 1970's refused to recognize Indian medical degrees and wanted fresh qualification tests.

The bureau also added to the blacklist the U.S. company GTE International Inc. and its branch GTE Credit Corporation of Connecticut, USA. Moreover, American Motors Corp., American Motors General, S.W. Industries, Silverstone Holding Inc., S.W. Industries S.W. Delaware, Harry Winston Inc., Harry Winston SARL of Paris, Harry Winston Sam of Monte Carlo, Kalmar Pty Ltd. of Australia and Kalmar Kockum GmbH, I of Sweden will be maintained on the black list.

RCA also will be maintained along with all its subsidiaries whose common address is Great North Road Hatfield, Hertfordshire. The Greek Mertz and all its branches and the Indian Firm M. Manubhai and Co. and all its branches and factories, as well as its sister company New Oriental Silk Mills Private were boycotted.

Vessels boycotted this week include the Panamanian SS Nyuta, alias Inni, alias Vincita; the Spanish S.S. Ciudad de Granada; the West German ship Manchester Clipper; the Greek SS Agia Matrona, alias Maya, alias Haviva (formerly flying the Israeli flag); and the Greek ships Rayna; Krios, alias Thira, alias Fernspring and Julietta; as well as the West German ship Lucy Borchard were also blacklisted.

A newly blacklisted Greek ship is Kyriaki, alias Kyrnikos E-80, alias Irenes Symphony, alias Nego Jade-78, alias Shomei Maru-73.

Meanwhile, the bureau lifted a number of vessels and companies from the black list. They include the Greek ship Ionian Reefer, alias Australic and the Singapore ship Meteor II; the Cypriot firm Evripides Papoutas and its branches and plants and the Kenyan Barclays Bank International, because it is a branch of the British bank Barclays Bank previously removed from the blacklist. United Biscuits of Britain and Wimpy International Ltd. were also removed from the blacklist.

The copy, written in 1488, is believed to have been commissioned for a mosque which Sultan Quait Bay was building in Cairo. It was purchased by the Karim Saeed Foundation, established earlier this year by Saudi Arabian businessman Wafiq Saeed in memory of his son. The foundation is to present the Quran volume to the new Regent Park's mosque in London. The volume, with illuminated florets between verses, is the most expensive Quran copy ever sold at auction. It also contains one double page of illumination in color. Nabil Saeed of Sotheby's is seen displaying the book.

Israelis turn back relief ship

NICOSIA, June 19 (Agencies) — A ship carrying 750 tons of relief supplies for South Lebanon has been turned back by the Israelis alleging there are mines off the coast, a spokesman for the International Committee of the Red Cross said Saturday.

The Anton had been cleared to sail from Cyprus to Sidon by the committee's Geneva head office Friday night after a week of negotiations with Israel, which controls the area following its invasion.

Red Cross officials said the ship was being used as a trial to open a sea-route to take aid to the suffering people. If the attempt succeeded, the Red Cross hoped to mount a bigger seaborne operation.

The officials did not know when the ship would be allowed into Sidon but said the airlift of relief aid from Larnaca to Damascus and Tel Aviv would continue. A chartered Swiss plane has made several flights.

Egypt frees 182 detainees

CAIRO, June 19 (R) — The Egyptian government released a group of 182 detainees Friday after finding them of no present danger to the country's security, the official Middle East News Agency (MENA) reported.

The detainees were among some 1,600 persons arrested by the late President Anwar Sadat last September for allegedly stirring sectarian strife. MENA said they were released in accordance with President Hosni Mubarak's instructions to release all who are found to be not guilty of terrorist acts.

Earlier this month, Egyptian Interior Minister Hassan Abu Basha said at least 3,000 persons had been detained under the country's state of emergency imposed after the assassination of Sadat last October.

Two injured in Paris explosion

PARIS, June 19 (Agencies) — Two men were wounded Saturday when a bomb exploded in front of a Paris medical laboratory, Iranian sources said.

One of the two was an Iranian who may have been carrying the device, thought to be homemade, the sources added. The Iranian, who was not identified, was seriously wounded, and the other man, also unidentified, suffered light injuries.

Police said the bomb probably went off accidentally. It was not known whether the two men were together. An investigation began into whether the explosion was related to a demonstration by the Iranian leftist opposition group People's Mujahadeen, which was to take place later Saturday in Paris. The demonstration was called to protest executions and crackdowns by Iran's leadership.

Earlier Saturday in New Delhi, masked

In Geneva, the Palestine Liberation Organization's (PLO) U.N. observer, Daoud Barakat, has called on the Red Cross to give Palestinian soldiers and civilians prisoner of war status.

Barakat said in a letter to Red Cross Chairman Alexander Hay that pictures of blindfolded Palestinians seen on television showed they were the victims of violations of the Geneva Convention. He asked the Red Cross to spare no efforts to "tell us the number of prisoners and the names of those captured." Israel has never described the status of those taken prisoner by Israeli troops.

In New York, U.S. President Ronald Reagan Friday pledged $10 million in disaster relief for Lebanon, over and above the $25 million that already is in the pipeline. An official said, Peter McPherson administrator of the U.S. Agency for International Development and Reagan's personal representative for American disaster assistance to Lebanon, made the announcement after meeting with U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar.

McPherson acknowledged that little aid has gotten through to Lebanon thus far, but said he hoped it would begin to reach the civilian victims within "the next few days."

Meanwhile, a senior State Department official Friday met the representative of an American-Arab group in Washington on the plight of the civilians and prisoners of war. A State Department spokesman said Assistant Secretary Elliot Abrams conferred with James Zogby, head of the American-Arab Anti-Discrimination Committee, about the needs of Beirut's 600,000 inhabitants. Zogby also asked for U.S. aid in locating and identifying Lebanese and Palestinians captured by invading Israeli forces.

In Colombo, the foreign ministry was reported making discreet inquiries to see if any Sri Lankans captured by Israeli forces in Lebanon were northern secessionists undergoing training with the Palestinians. The Sun newspaper said the inquiries followed the news, received here on Thursday night, that a group of Sri Lankans were among the those taken prisoner by the Israelis when they attacked Palestinian positions.

In London, the British Council of Churches Friday condemned the Israeli invasion and appealed to Christians to help relieve the suffering of the estimated 600,000 people left homeless. The council, representing the Anglican Church and most Protestant denominations, said it was "appealed by the brutality of the attack, the scale of human suffering and the fact that most of the victims were innocent civilians."

In Havana, Cuban President Fidel Castro said the prestige of the United Nations would be seriously damaged if it proved incapable of ending the current fighting in Lebanon and achieving an Israeli withdrawal. Castro, writing as head of the nonaligned movement, told U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar that the United Nations should take energetic, decisive and immediate action.

In Amman, Romanian President Nicolae Ceausescu ended a 48-hour official visit to Jordan Saturday after signing long-term trade agreements and "condemning the Israeli invasion."

In a joint communiqué released prior to Ceausescu's departure for Bucharest, both countries condemned the invasion and called for Israeli withdrawal from the occupied territories and the restoration of the Palestinian people's rights and self-determination.

In a related development, the U.N. Security Council, with the Soviet Union and Poland abstaining, voted Friday to extend the life of the beleaguered U.N. peacekeeping force in South Lebanon for a limited period of two months. The vote was 13-0.

U.S. Ambassador Jeane J. Kirkpatrick said she had voted to extend the mandate without "any extension of its responsibilities...or territorial scope because we believe this force will contribute most directly and clearly to the restoration of peace and well-being of the area and to the restoration of the authority and sovereignty of the government of Lebanon."

Habre forms council of state in Chad

N'DJAMENA, June 19 (AFP) — Chadian rebel leader Hissene Habre Saturday declared himself interim head of state and offered to have talks with his principal rivals of the south on the future of the country.

In a speech to the nation, Habre announced the formation of a council of state presided by himself and consisting principally of his leading colleagues in his Armed Forces of the North (FAN) faction. Habre said "exceptional circumstances" justified the formation of the council, but said its life was necessarily limited and it would be dissolved when a government was formed.

Rome bomb blast damages Israeli trade mission

ROME, June 19 (AP) — Two separate bomb explosions inflicted heavy damage to the offices of the Israeli trade mission and to the American Express in downtown Rome overnight, police reported Saturday.

No one claimed responsibility for the explosions, which came less than two days after two Palestinians were murdered in the streets of the city. The first explosion damaged the Israeli trade offices on the riverside road and was heard throughout downtown Rome.

A few hours later, another explosion shook the offices near the Spanish steps of American Express, a landmark for thousands of tourists. There were no injuries in either explosion.

On Thursday, the deputy director of the Palestine Liberation Organization in Italy, Kamal Hussein, was killed by a sharpshooter bomb placed under the back seat of his car. A Palestinian student, Nazeh Matar, active in the PLO Rome office, was shot dead outside his home by killers who trapped him in his garage. The PLO had blamed Israel for the attacks, believed to be the first killings of PLO leaders in Europe since Israel began its military drive in Lebanon earlier this month.

Libyan envoy told

Morocco to boycott OAU summit on Sahara issue

RABAT, June 19 (R) — Morocco is still insisting on a special Organization of African Unity (OAU) summit to expel the Polisario Front's Saharan Republic from the organization, Moroccan Minister of State Ahmad Alaoui said Friday.

Alaoui made his comments in an editorial in the pro-government daily Moroc Soir on a Moroccan decision this week not to attend any OAU meetings as long as the republic remained in the organization.

"Morocco will not participate in any conference as long as the extraordinary summit it has requested has not met 'to restore legality,'" Alaoui wrote.

Morocco and 18 other states walked out of an OAU meeting in Addis Ababa in February when Secretary General Edeine Kodjo admitted the Saharan Arab Democratic Republic (SADR), proclaimed by the Polisario, as a member of the organization.

King Hassan conveyed Morocco's decision not to attend meetings to Libyan Foreign Minister Ali Abdusalam Triki Wednesday when Triki delivered an official invitation to the 19th ordinary OAU summit due to open in Tripoli Aug. 3. Polisario is fighting Morocco for control of the former Spanish territory.

In another development, the son of a Moroccan minister has been detained by the police since June 10, after the first issue of a magazine he has started called for the Berber language to be taught on the same footing as Arabic, the country's official language.

He is Ouzin Ahardane, son of Minister of State for Cooperation Mahjoubi Ahardane. His Arab-language magazine Amazigh, which was seized by the police at newspaper kiosks when it appeared a few weeks ago, had an editorial on the language issue which argued for equal treatment for the Berber tongue on the grounds that the Berbers were the country's first inhabitants.

Two of Ahardane's junior colleagues are also being detained with him, sources said, identifying one of them as Professor Sadki Ali of the Arts Faculty at Fez. A fourth person held for questioning, a journalist, was freed Thursday.

THE BATTLE FOR BEIRUT

The Palestinian resistance is mining the airport approaches to Beirut as well as other probable points of advance for the Israelis. The Palestinians are preparing to fight to the end in the beleaguered city, and PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat has taken up the call first issued by Dr. George Habash of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, who said that the battle for Beirut will be the "Stalingrad of the Arabs."

On the political front, the thrust of most activity has been toward avoiding a final showdown in Beirut through finding an acceptable solution for the situation of the Palestinians in Beirut or even in Lebanon as a whole.

There is a view of a proposal which involves the Lebanese army being used to escort the Palestinian fighters out of West Beirut to Syria. But here the reports are that the Palestinians have already rejected this.

Specifically, the Palestinians have said that they will not agree on leaving Lebanon even if they were to agree on leaving West Beirut. This can be interpreted to mean that they might be prepared to go to the north of the Bekaa Valley and to the city of Tripoli in the north of the country.

The result of such contacts will not be known for at least two more days. But it is to be noted in the meantime that the Israeli invaders have widened their deployment greatly in the Mount Lebanon area. Their disposition is now such that the aim appears to threaten the strategically Dahr al Baidar mountain and the Sanine summit. Both dominate the middle and north approaches of the Bekaa Valley, which the Israeli enemy has already invested from the south up to Chitoura. Thus it is this area which straddles the international highway between Beirut and Damascus which appears to be the enemy's objective.

Saudi Arabian press review

Saturday's newspapers hailed the existing close relationship between the Kingdom's rulers and people and praised King Fahd's succession to the throne.

Al-Riyadh said King Fahd's and Crown Prince Abdullah's meetings with citizens have demonstrated that the responsibility of ruling the country was a "common responsibility shared by the leadership and ordinary citizens."

The paper said King Fahd was also receiving at such a "crucial time" world leaders who had always appreciated the Kingdom's regional and international role.

Al-Jazirah stressed that the relations between King Fahd and the people were "deep-rooted" and said the people "harbor great love and respect for the royal family."

Al-Bilad asserted that King Fahd was not a new comer and said "ever since he had been appointed as crown prince by his brother the late King Khalid he had shouldered fully his responsibility."

The paper highlighted King Fahd's good deeds and said he had climbed to the ladder of power step by step. "The Kingdom is opening a new page under the leadership of King Fahd and Crown Prince Abdullah," the paper added.

Okaz condemned the Israeli invasion of Lebanon and praised the Kingdom's efforts to foil attempts aimed at "the liquidation of the Palestinian people."

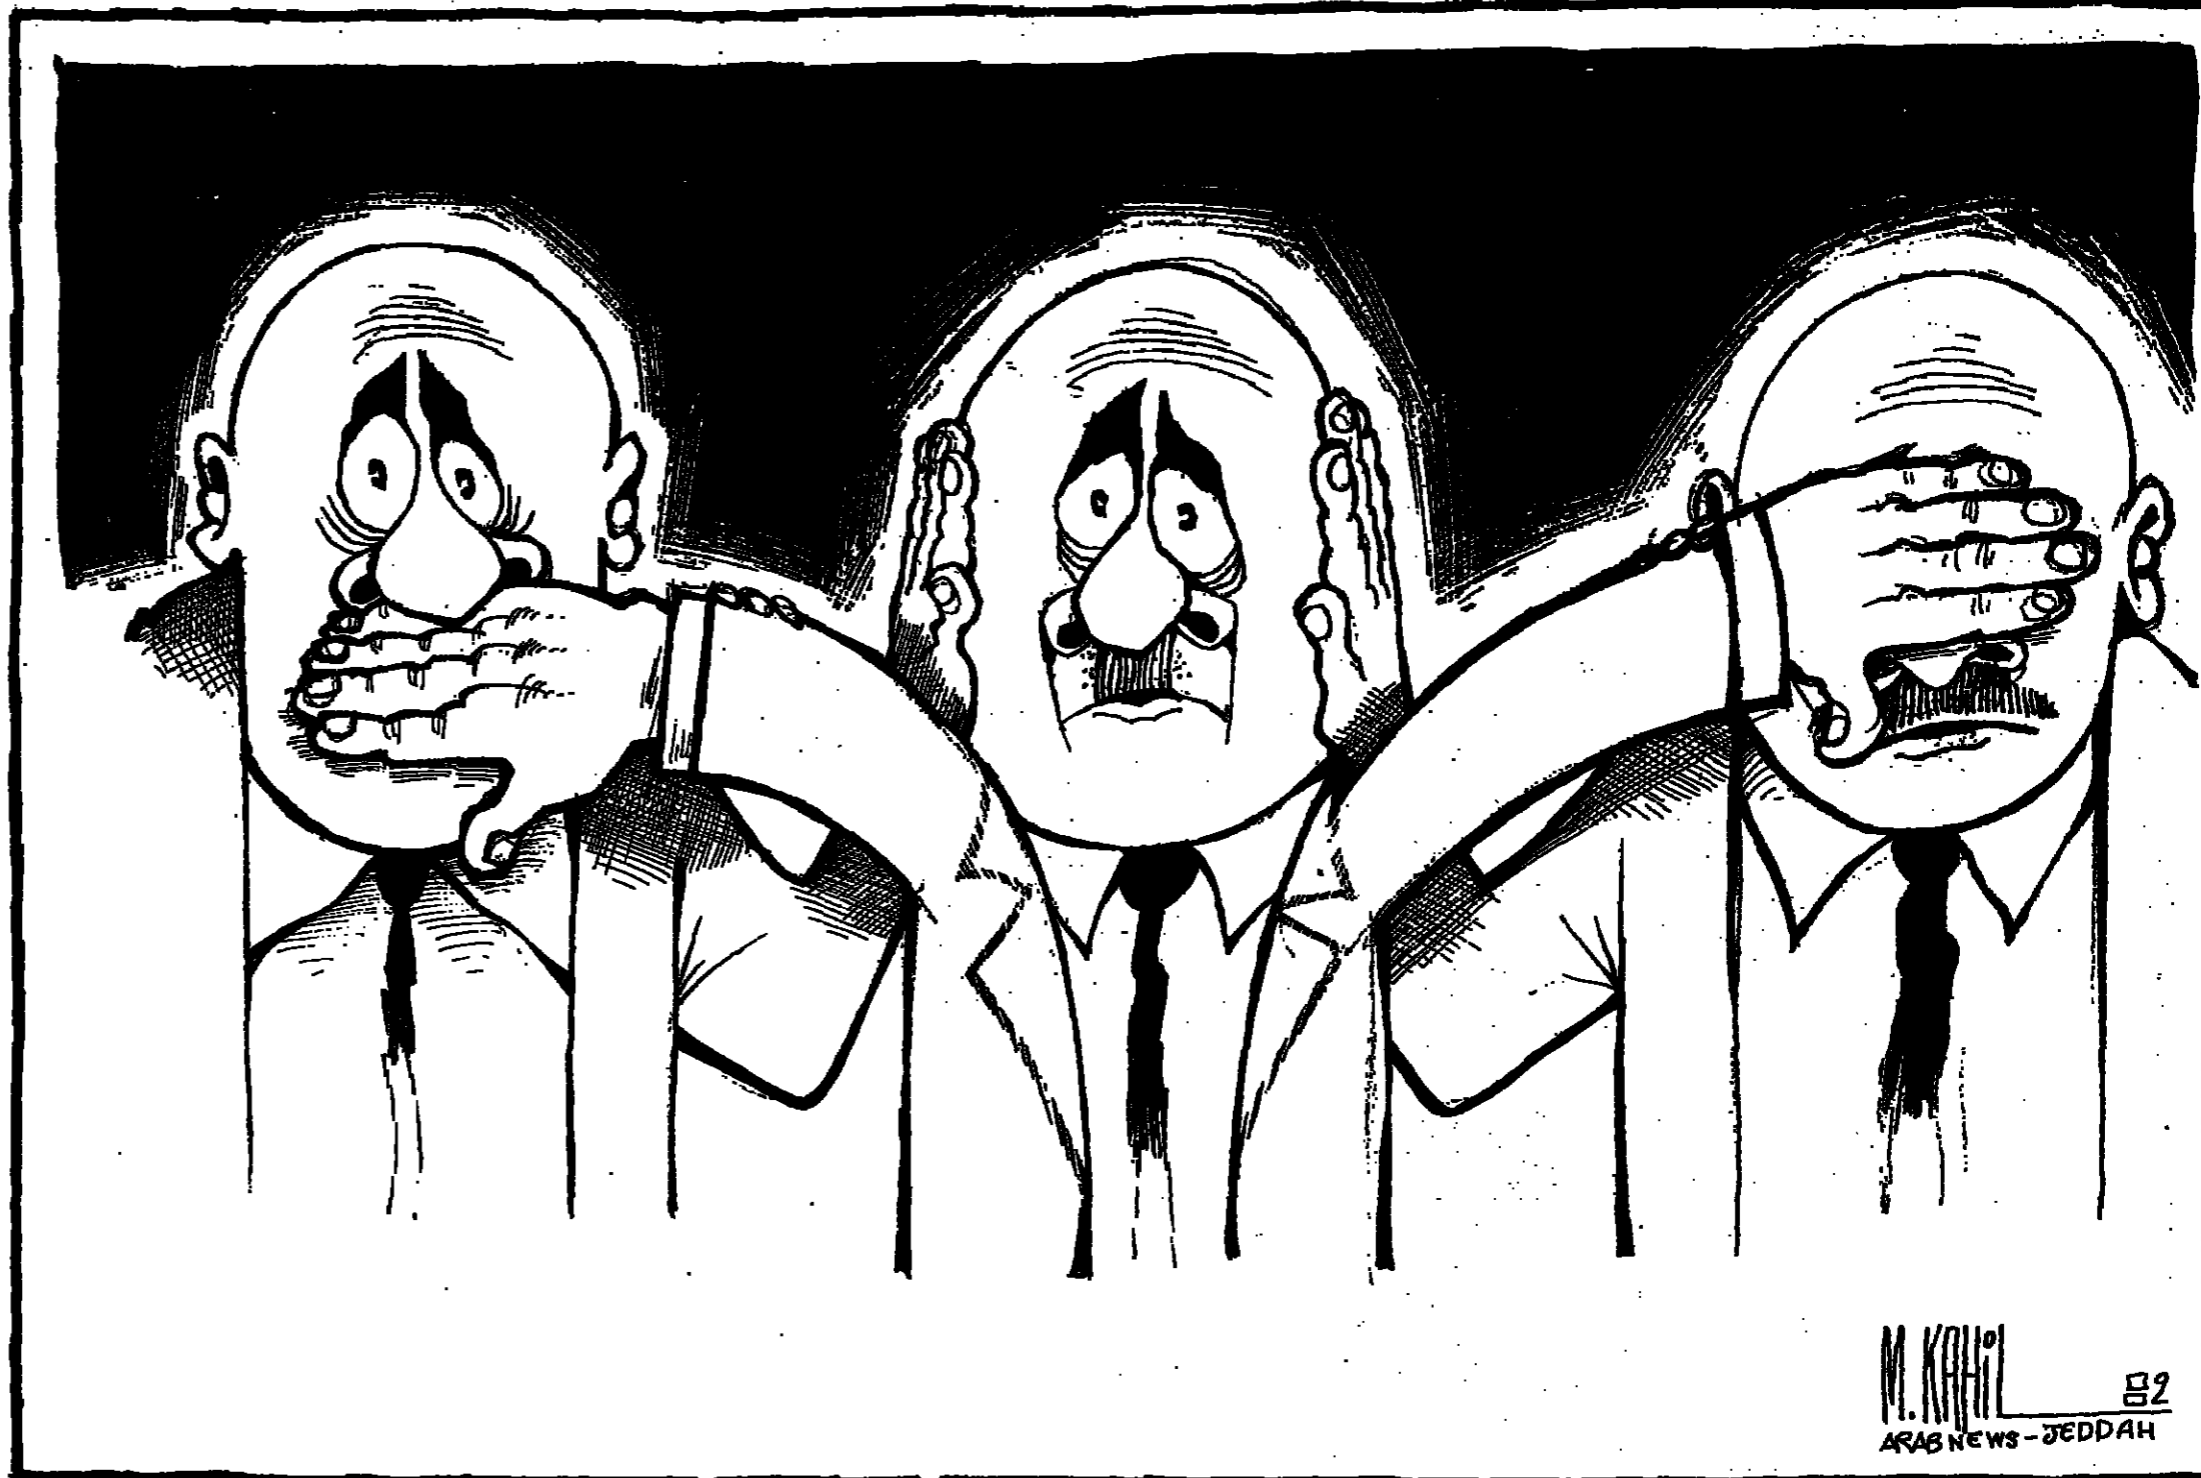

The paper stressed that Saudi Arabia's contacts with the leaders of the U.S. and the West European countries asking them to exert pressure on Israel "will surely foil the Israeli designs behind the invasion."

It said the Kingdom's moves had led to "reduced U.S. support for Israel to the extent that the U.S. administration is now insisting on Israeli withdrawal from Lebanon."

Okaz assured the Lebanese and Palestinian peoples that the Kingdom's new leadership would extend all possible help to achieve their rights and goals.

Al-Yam called on the Arabs to stand firmly beside their brothers in Lebanon and mobilize all their financial and human resources in support of the Lebanese and Palestinian peoples at "these critical hours."

The paper urged the Arabs to "effectively participate in the Lebanese and Palestinian resistance and cautioned them not to be misled by contentions that Israel would abide by the U.N. resolutions calling for Israeli withdrawal from Lebanon." (SPA)

EEC, Basque issues a thorn in French-Spanish relations

By Charles Brommer

PARIS — After traveling the world for much of the past year to project a new French voice abroad, President Francois Mitterrand is now turning to one of France's oldest foreign policy headaches — relations with Spain. On a visit to Madrid next week, the Socialist president will try to succeed where his predecessor failed and break free from two issues that have come to bedevil ties between the two neighbors.

Since the death of Gen. Francisco Franco ended Spain's isolation in 1975, attempts to forge a close Paris-Madrid link have been largely neutralized by France's refusal to extradite Basque guerrillas and its policy on Spanish entry to the European Economic Community (EEC).

The two countries have maintained constant contacts since President Valery Giscard d'Estaing built up a personal friendship with King Juan Carlos and proposed a role for France as "godmother" to Spain in its return to the world stage. But warm French pledges, continuing under Mitterrand's administration, have come to sound hollow in Madrid where France has appeared inflexible on the Basques and the EEC diplomats say.

Developments over the first year of the Mitterrand administration have largely disappointed Madrid, especially since they have not justified optimism generated when Prime Minister Leopoldo Calvo Sotelo visited Paris last July. On the positive side, Spanish officials have recently indicated they are pleased by a crackdown on Basque extremists operating from France over the past two months.

Commenting on his Spanish trip at a press conference last week, Mitterrand acknowledged "relations are not excellent" and promised to improve them. French officials said Mitterrand believed it was essential "to broaden the debate" by getting away from the frictions that have historically dogged the two neighbors.

In his Madrid talks, with Calvo Sotelo, King Juan Carlos and other leaders, Mitterrand will be stressing the role he sees an outward-looking Spain playing in European and world affairs, they said. The two countries could gain from regional cooperation as well as concertation in such fields as policy toward Latin America, where both Spain and France are becoming increasingly active, the officials said.

Mitterrand is also expected to emphasize East-West relations in the Madrid talks, the officials said. The new French administration, more pro-Atlantic than Giscard d'Estaing's conservative government, was strongly in favor of Spain's entry into NATO earlier this month. NATO membership was opposed by Spain's Socialist Party, which has recently gained strong electoral support. Party leader Felipe Gonzalez will confer with Mitterrand.

Diplomats said it was difficult to envisage any real change in the Franco-Spanish atmosphere without something concrete on the EEC and guerrilla issues.

Although favorable to Spanish entry to the EEC now due in 1984, France has posed conditions which have contributed to delays in negotiations between Madrid and the community. Problems have arisen over the question of Spanish immigrant workers and the period Spain will be allowed to bring down customs barriers, but the biggest obstacle for France is agriculture.

Spanish entry will effectively increase the EEC's agricultural area by a third, putting greatest pressure on southern French, Italian and Greek farmers. France fears that its southern farming industry would face disaster if Spanish farmers, benefitting from community subsidies, were able to market vegetables, fruit and other produce under current community rules.

Mitterrand's attitude to Spanish entry, like his predecessor's has provoked concern in Madrid, particularly after a visit he paid to Portugal in December. Mitterrand referred to the "possibility" of Spanish entry and said: "I cannot go ahead without being assured that the economy of France's southern regions will not be upset."

The problem of cheap Spanish farm produce has sparked violent incidents in southwest France over the past year, with angry farmers attacking trucks and trains bringing in imports and Spain has formally protested to France. Other formal Spanish protests over the past year have been made on the Basque issue, which has plagued Franco-Spanish relations since the days of Gen. Franco.

Calvo Sotelo told the Spanish parliament in April that France "does not understand our reasons and is not taking part in a struggle which involves all of West Europe."

The Spanish government believed for a time last year that the Mitterrand administration would modify the French practice of granting exile to Basque activists. But Prime Minister Pierre Mauroy said last summer France would not extradite suspected members of the ETA guerrilla organization wanted in Spain, some of them facing charges of murder and kidnapping.

The Socialist government has since overruled court decisions in favor of extradition against half a dozen Basque suspects. But at the same time it has intensified police efforts to crack down on the 200 or so suspected Basque militants believed to be operating from the French side of the Pyrenees.

Police believe they smashed one network in a series of raids in southwest France in April, during which they arrested 15 suspects and uncovered stocks of ammunition, cash and advanced electronic equipment.

In one of their biggest coups, French police last weekend took three guerrilla suspects into custody, including Domingo Iturbe Abasolo, or "Txomin" who is believed by Spanish police to be a leader of ETA's hardline military wing. Police sources said Txomin, who has lived near the city of Bayonne since 1968, was arrested after 200 blank French passports were found in the home of a suspected ETA sympathizer.

The sources said last week's raids were coordinated with Spanish police and aimed at heading off efforts to disrupt the World Soccer Cup tournament now under way in Spain.

Officials in Paris say cooperation between the two police forces is now close and the Madrid government is privately coming to accept that France's extradition practice did not prevent it from fighting the guerrillas. (R)

The Gentle King

Once in Arabia a great king
Friendly like a dove
Gentle like the breeze
Loved by rich and poor alike
Little children are his favorite
Flowers of his heart
Schools all over the Kingdom
The kind king made for his people
East to west concrete roads meet
Modern buildings and skyscrapers
Beautiful airports and seaports
The kind king made for his people
Very close to Allah in his prayers
Footsteps of Muhammad his living ways
Embrace together the Islamic world
Against the Zionist aggressor of Lebanon
Once the angels came to him
Said, Khalid Allah is calling
His spirit went to heaven with them
As the gentle king lay in slumber.

ANZUS faces row over U.S. nuclear ships

By Barry Moody

SYDNEY — A major political row over visits to Australia by U.S. nuclear-armed or powered ships has suddenly injected controversy into next week's meeting of the ANZUS Alliance, linking the United States, Australia and New Zealand. Only two weeks ago officials were predicting that the 31st meeting of the ANZUS Council in Canberra next Monday and Tuesday would be a routine discussion between the three allies with the agenda similar to last year's conference in Wellington.

But that has changed because of a row between the opposition Labor Party and the Conservative Liberal-National Country Party coalition government over berthing by U.S. nuclear ships.

Opposition leader Zill Hayden has said a Labor government would ban nuclear-armed ships, but the party's position is confused by contradictory statements from other senior leaders giving no less than four versions of what Labor's policy should be.

The controversy has induced Washington to make a rare public statement about an Australian political debate, making clear the importance it attaches to access to friendly ports.

Superior U.S. arms tilted scale in Israel's favor

By Didier Fauqueux

WASHINGTON — Israel's invasion of Lebanon has proved the efficiency of American aircraft and weaponry. U.S. defense experts here contended, but they refused to conclude that this meant the Soviet arms supplied to Syria and the Palestinians were necessarily inferior.

"The Israelis used no black magic. What they used was simply superior equipment," one Pentagon expert said.

Though underlining the superiority of U.S. F-15 and F-16 fighters used by the Israeli air force in downing 79 Syrian MiG-21s and 23s experts pointed out that Soviet-built warplanes sold abroad were not as well equipped as the same aircraft used by the Soviet air force.

Soviet MiG fighters destined for export were not

A statement issued by the State Department and the U.S. Embassy said: "It should be clear that access to allied ports and airfields for U.S. ships and aircraft is critical to our efforts to maintain a strategic deterrence."

"It would be difficult, if not impossible, for the U.S. to carry out its responsibilities to assist effectively in the defense of its allies if it is denied the use of their ports," it said, adding that Washington would not identify which of its ships were armed with nuclear weapons.

U.S. Vice President George Bush also recently told Australian Deputy Prime Minister Doug Anthony that a ban would interfere with U.S. obligations under ANZUS.

The issue and the disparity it has caused in Labor ranks have been fully exploited by Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser, a staunch American ally, and other ministers. Fraser accused Labor of undermining Australia's participation in ANZUS and said a ban on nuclear-powered or armed vessels would destroy long-standing alliances with the U.S. and Britain.

The controversy was originally precipitated by John Nenn, recently elected Labor premier of the state of Victoria, who said his government would ban nuclear-powered or armed vessels. Fraser reacted quickly, promising that the federal government would legislate to ensure nuclear ships could enter Australian ports.

Nenn earlier this week backed down, saying his legal advice was that the federal government could override the states on the issue. But he said he hoped Fraser would convey Victoria's opposition to nuclear visits to foreign governments.

Government officials now say that the nuclear ships issue has been added to the agenda of next week's ANZUS meeting and the final communiqué is almost certain to contain a clause underlining the importance of access to Australian and New Zealand ports for U.S. nuclear ships.

Officials said other items on the agenda would include Southeast Asia and the continuing Vietnamese presence in Kampuchea, as well as Soviet activities in Afghanistan. They said discussions on the Southwest Pacific would include the current Papua New Guinea election and several unsuccessful attempts by Moscow to gain access for its research vessels to the waters around Pacific island states. (R)

The Israelis also had made some slight improvements to the basic version of the Sidewinder, using experience gained in previous mission over Lebanon. U.S. officials said.

The U.S. Defense Department is planning to send a team of specialists to draw conclusions from the Israeli operations in Lebanon. They are said to be particularly anxious to talk to troops from Israeli armored units who succeeded in destroying seven T-72 tanks — the latest model of Soviet tank supplied to the Syrian army.

Though it was still too soon to draw any definite conclusions, "they should be having some second thoughts in the Kremlin about some of their systems and how well they work," Gen. Jones said. (AFP)

'Di' steals the show at all places, all times

By Alan Harvey

LONDON, (R) — Wherever she goes she steals the show — maintaining her winning smile and sense of fun even when impending motherhood has its embarrassing moments.

The Princess of Wales, who has captivated the British nation since she married heir-to-the throne Prince Charles last July, is expecting a baby anytime in the next two or three weeks. But her pregnancy has not kept her out of the public's eye. And it did not keep her away this week from Royal Ascot, the four-day race meeting that tops the social calendar for British high society.

She was the royal figure everyone wanted to see, and the crowd thought it was going to be disappointed when she did not accompany Queen Elizabeth and other members of the royal family on the traditional coach ride down the course. Instead Princess Diana, radiant in a full-length coral pink silk dress, was delivered to the royal box in the queen's personal Rolls-Royce. It was when she was leaving that she had one of those embarrassing moments — and she carried it off splendidly.

When the princess got into Charles's sports car, she could not get the seat belt across her lap. She struggled in vain, maintaining her youthful composure. Smiling at a crowd of well-wishers clustered around, she gestured that she was now too big for it to fit. Her detective bodyguard came to the rescue, wrapped the seat belt around her and locked it into the catch between the seats.

She feigned a grimace, raised her eyes to the heavens, and could not hold back a laugh. Charles gave her a wink as they drove off happily. Two doctors hovered close at hand while Diana was at the races and gossip columnists speculated that the royal baby was due within the next few days.

The fair-haired, blue-eyed princess — popularly known as "Lady Di" — let it slip weeks ago that she expected the baby on July 1, her 21st birthday. The baby, whether boy or girl, will become second in line to the British throne after Prince Charles. And the princess, the former Lady Diana Spencer, will become Britain's youngest royal mother in more than a century.

The baby will be delivered by royal gynecologist George Pinker, 57. He delivered the two babies of the queen's daughter Princess Anne. Buckingham Palace is tight-lipped about where the baby will be born. Spokesman Michael Shea says it will be either at Kensington palace in London, where the royal couple have an apartment, or at St. Mary's Hospital, where Anne had her two children.

The baby will be more British than its father. Debrett's Peerage, the authoritative book that records nobility, says the baby will be 58.8 percent British whereas Charles is only 24.81 percent British.

Charles's father, Prince Philip, was born the son of Prince Andrew of Greece. Lady Di also comes from an aristocratic family and her father Earl Spencer was once equerry to King George V. She and Charles are both direct descendants of King James I.

The princess has always had a love of children and was an unassuming nursery school teacher in London until her engagement splashed her picture across every newspaper in Britain.

Since her fairy-tale wedding last July 29, watched by more than 700 million television viewers around the world, Lady Di has blossomed from a shy girl to become the "people's princess." Now she is the most popular royal figure in the land. Scarcely a cross word has been written about the princess, who won cups at school for helpfulness and service rather than scholastic achievement.

She had known prince Charles as a young girl growing up on a stately home on the royal estate at Sandringham. But it was only in 1980 that their friendship budded into romance. Until then, says biographer Penny Junor, she was a young girl from a broken home (her mother and father divorced), with no qualifications and an uncertain future. Today as the ninth Princess of Wales she is, says Junor, "loved by a prince, adored by a nation and looking to a very certain future."

ALL ABOUT DIANA: British author Robert Lacey's latest work, Princess, is a fascinating account of the Princess of Wales who has captured the world's imagination.

Video provides new toy to Moscow's ruling elite

By Bryan Bramley

MOSCOW (AP) — A video revolution has started in the Soviet Union, providing the ruling elite with a new toy. At the same time, however, the phenomenon is loosening Soviet authorities' control over what Western movies are available to the public.

The video wave reached members of the ruling Soviet Politburo and their families, and is now trickling down through party and government ranks. Soviet diplomats, journalists and performing artists who are allowed to travel to the West are also beginning to acquire videotape machines and trade and sell tapes among themselves.

Soviet newspapers recently advertised domestically made videotape machines — considerably less sophisticated than Western models. New Western-made video machines are not available to the average Soviet consumer although restricted-access foreign currency stores carry Japanese-made models for about 1,500 rubles ($2,115). Second-hand electronic stores in Moscow occasionally offer used foreign models, starting at about 4,000 rubles ($5,640).

Black market prices for new foreign-made video players run between 9,000 and 12,000 rubles ($12,690 to $16,920), according to Soviets who have priced them. Material for the machines comes from the West, generally carried in by those trusted Soviets allowed to travel abroad.

"A friend of mine, a correspondent, just came back from assignment to the Middle East and he brought back a video and several dozen movies," said one Muscovite. The most popular movies, according to Soviets, are martial arts films from the Far East and recent releases from the West.

Video cassettes of foreign films are circulated on the black market, for as much as 300 rubles ($423) a copy, in much the same way as unofficial books and tape-recordings. There seems little chance that the average Soviet worker, who earns 172 rubles ($243) a month, will soon be screening Western movies on a home video, but the machines are reaching more and more people.

Wealthy traders from Georgia and Armenia in the southern Soviet Union, who amass fortunes peddling fresh fruit and vegetables in big cities like Moscow, are said to be moving into the market. Foreign sailors reportedly sell Western video players in Soviet sea ports on the Baltic, the Black Sea and the Far East.

The Soviet elite goes to great lengths to protect the masses from the "corrupting influences" of Western movies. Such films, however, are shown to select audiences by Goskino, the state agency that oversees the production of Soviet-made films and the distribution of imported films.

"What they fear most are films that show how people in the West live, how well off they are compared to people here," said Nikolai Pankov, 35. He and his wife Nadezhda, 34, formerly worked as projectionists in six restricted viewing halls at Goskino headquarters in downtown Moscow.

They said they were willing to talk to the Associated Press because they have been denied permission to emigrate from the Soviet Union and have been forced out of their jobs because of their conversations with foreigners.

Goskino, said the Pankovs, obtains films from foreign distributors for possible purchase, makes copies, and in most cases rejects the films as unacceptable for Soviet audiences. The originals are returned to the makers, the Pankovs said, and the copies kept in archives for trusted audiences.

Among those ruled unfit for the Soviet public, but which are popular with the elite, are Last Tango in Paris, King of Hearts, Emanuelle, the James Bond series, Bonnie and Clyde, and King Kong, the Pankovs said. A favorite was the Godfather, they said.

Film distributors in the West were unable to confirm that any of those films had been lent to Goskino for review. Westerners attending court proceedings between government and the Pankovs say that Goskino officials have confirmed in testimony the existence of the archives and the special screenings.

New hormone could be powerful key to detection and treatment of cancer

By Robert Locke

SAN FRANCISCO, California (AP) — Scientists say they have unraveled the structure of a potent new hormone that fuel the growth of tumors, a feat that suggests a powerful tool to diagnose cancer and perhaps new types of treatment.

"I think (the hormone) is what drives the cancer cell — what keeps it growing," said Dr. George J. Todaro of the U.S. National Cancer Institute.

Hormones are proteins produced or regulated by a few master glands that distribute them throughout the body where they control or affect most human form and behavior. For instance, the male hormone, testosterone, is a prime determinant of male characteristics.

Normally, hormones operate with a kind of fail-safe mechanism that prevent them from having any effect on the type of body tissue that produces them. But the new hormone Todaro has isolated — called "transforming growth factor" — originates in and acts on the same cancer cells, allowing the tumor, in effect, to feed on itself.

"That makes the cancer cells much more independent. They no longer have to be fed from outside (by other parts of the victim's body)," he said in an interview before describing his research Friday to the Endocrine Society's annual meeting.

Todaro said the hormone has been found in most major cancers, including those of the lung, breast and colon, but seems to be missing from leukemias. And he said, "it looks like very different kinds of tumors...make exactly the same kind of growth factors."

The hormone was reported by Todaro about two years ago and, he said, "we have now been able to detect it in the urine of cancer patients."

"We're exploring the possibility that it could be a marker for detecting cancer" at an early stage and thus dramatically increasing the chances of recovery, he said.

But Todaro said that "if it is going to be clinically useful, as I believe it will, one would need a screening method that's less cumbersome."

With at least some cancers, Todaro said, when malignant cells in laboratory dish are deprived of growth factor, "they just sit there and behave like a normal cell."

And, he said, "if we feed this to normal cells, they behave like tumor cells. But when you quit giving it to them, they go back to normal."

In another development, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has approved new guidelines that will expand the number of people eligible to receive the University of Utah's artificial heart.

John Dwan, university medical center spokesman, said the school was notified that the guidelines, approved May 24 by the university's institutional review board, had been signed by FDA officials. Dwan said that preparations for implanting the heart — called the Jarvik-7 after its inventor, Dr. Robert Jarvik — could "begin anytime now."

The guideline changes make sufferers of cardiomyopathy, an inoperative, degenerative disease of the heart muscle, eligible for the first-sized device for the first time.

Implanting the device into such patients would mean removing a working, though diseased heart — something the school's old FDA-approved guidelines forbade. Recipients of the artificial heart would spend the rest of their lives tethered by air hoses to an external compressor powering the device.

Dr. William DeVries, head of cardiopulmonary surgery, would perform any implant operations. Under the old rules the device could only be implanted in patients whose hearts stopped and could not be restarted on the operating table.

Sad stories of animals

By Arjuna

MANILA (Depthnews) — At first, it looked like a Herman Melville tale of whaling. But no, this is a doomsday book, a sad but fascinating reading. And it tells us what we already know.

This is a book of losers — The Doodsey Book of Animals by David Day — a compendium of many of the 300 vertebrate species that have become extinct in the last three centuries. Day notes that in contrast, even in the cataclysmic time of the disappearance of the dinosaurs, the rate of extinction was not more than one species per 100 years.

Take the gigantic (nine-meter-long) Steller's sea cow. The Doodsey Book quotes naturalist Georg Steller who made the only scientific record of the sea cow — from a whaling boat. "After harpooning, those in the boat made the animal fast and wore it out with continual blows until tired and completely motionless, it was attacked with bayonets, knives, and pulled up on land. Immense slices were cut from the still living animal."

Wilhelm Steller recorded the male sea cow's loyalty, trying in vain to free the female caught by a hook, following her to shore in spite of the beating he got from whalers. The male stayed long near the beach even after the female sea cow was dead. The last sea cow was caught circa 1767 in the Bering Sea.

There are other sad stories — the Caribbean monk seal, the Quagga, the Tasmanian wolf, the Barbary lion, Arizona jaguar, and such well-known losers like the Dodo, the Passenger pigeon and the Bali tiger.

Day also talks about extinct birds, including the elephant bird of Madagascar, the mythical Roc which was talked about since the days of Carthage. The bird was a legend before it was first seen by a European in the 16th century when Dutch seamen astonished the folks back home with gigantic eggs 90 centimeters in circumference. They had a fluid capacity of some nine liters, equal to 200 domestic chicken eggs. It was the largest single cell ever recorded on earth.

But there are also happy endings, like the Dodo tree which is local to Mauritius. Only 13 trees remain, and while fruit and seed continue to grow on the 300-400-year-old trees, no sapling has ever been produced and the trees are nearing the end of their life spans. Dr. Stanley Temple theorized that the seeds could only germinate after having its outer casing crushed in the powerful gizzard of the now-extinct Dodo bird (the last one died around 1680).

"The world is not so narrow a place that we can be the sole judges of what is valuable and beautiful in it," says Dr. Day. "If a species becomes extinct, it will never come into being again. It will vanish forever like an exploding star and for this we hold direct responsibility."

Another Look

Who talks in automobiles?

By Robert Youkum

While cruising through a recent issue of Psychology Today I came on a short and intriguing item entitled "When Drivers Talk."

The brief article gave the results of an unusual survey made by a University of Chicago psychologist, who, with the aid of his wife and daughter, described the state of affairs in 353 automobiles on an interstate highway. Only cars with couples were counted. The study showed that:

1. Men were eight times more likely than women to be driving.

2. Only 48 percent of the couples were talking.

3. More couples were talking with women as passengers (51 percent) than with men as passengers (37 percent).

But what were the couples talking about? That's where my research comes in. I'm mailing the following report to Psychology Today:

Forty-two percent were talking about subjects directly related to the trip. A typical conversation of that sort goes something like this:

"Why do you always stay in the left lane when you pass someone?"

"I don't always stay in the left lane. You always use the word 'always.' Last time you asked why I always get lost. I don't always get lost. I don't always stay in the left lane when I pass someone."

"Yes. Correct. That's right; I am in the left lane. I am in the left lane because I passed another car and —"

"But that was two or three minutes ago!"

"May I finish my sentence?"

"I thought you had. Your sentences tend to go on and on."

"No, I hadn't. I was going to say 'and there are no other cars behind me, so it really doesn't matter a damn whether I'm in the left lane or not.'"

"So you're going to wait in this lane until you start blocking people and then move over?"

"That's right. I'm deliberately going to block traffic THE WAY I ALWAYS DO!"

"Careful! You swerved and almost hit the guard rail."

"I DID NOT ALMOST HIT THE GUARD RAIL! I DIDN'T COME WITHIN TEN FEET OF THAT GUARD RAIL! HAVE I EVER EVEN TOUCHED A GUARD RAIL?"

And so forth.

Thirty percent were talking about family matters, as in:

"Oh, yeah? Well it's obvious to me that you're trying to get her to blame me. You've always tried to get the children to side with you. You make me into the heavy. I'm the one who has to tell them to get to bed, to get up, to turn off the TV while doing homework, to clean up their rooms, to eat something healthy at least once a month, and what do you do? All you do is..." And so on.

Seventeen percent were discussing the people they've just seen or are about to see, as follows:

"The amazing thing is that they've stayed together this long. Were you there when she chucked that frozen lamb chop at him?"

"No! Really?"

"Yes. She missed, and the dog got it. Then they were both chasing the dog around like a couple of crazies, yelling at him and each other at the same time. They should either get a divorce or hire a live-in marriage counselor."

"Instead of chucking lamb chops she should chuck out that mother of his. That woman could have rent asunder any marriage in history, including that of Romeo and Juliet."

Seven percent were talking about talking:

"Did you see that story about couples talking in automobiles? It said that more couples were talking when women were passengers than when men were."

"That isn't surprising. Men who don't drive are likely to be quiet types."

"What does that mean? It sounds chauvinistic to me."

"Everything sounds chauvinistic to you. What I mean is that even you must admit that there are some things men do better than women, including playing football and writing music and driving. Men who don't drive are muffers."

"Pull this car over! I want to get out!"

And in the remaining four percent of the cars? Well, my research shows that in those cases one person was talking and the other was sleeping. The talkers and sleepers were equally divided between men and women, which shows that neither sex has a monopoly on boring monologues.

FINDING THE 'RIGHT' PLASTIC SURGEON

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J.

Steincrohn

M.D., F.A.C.P.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I've waited a long time to make my decision. Bothered by a crooked nose all my life, I'm making plans to have a rhinoplasty.

I'm 43 and a practicing attorney who is self-conscious when facing a jury. But, I recall your warning in several of your columns about getting a qualified plastic surgeon. I don't want to depend upon the recommendations of friends. — Mr. F.

Dear Mr. F.: And, don't depend upon a random "walk" through the yellow pages of your phone book, either. Your family doctor may help.

If he's still in doubt a plastic surgeon's qualifications, write to Linda Campbell, Director of Communications of the American Society of Plastic and Reconstructive Surgeons, Inc., 233 N. Michigan Ave., Suite 1900, Chicago, Illinois 60601.

This organization was founded in 1931 to promote optimal care for plastic surgery patients. Its present membership is 2,600. To become an active member of the ASPRS, a plastic surgeon must be certified by the American Board of Plastic Surgery. To become qualified for certification, a plastic surgeon must have completed medical school training, an approved three-year general surgery program, and an approved two-year plastic surgery residency program. Certification is obtained only after a candidate passes comprehensive and rigorous examinations — both written and oral.

If you find a plastic surgeon with sufficient qualifications, Mr. F., "your nose will be in good hands."

MEDICALETTES

(Replies to and from readers):

For Mr. D.: If your doctor believes it is indicated in your case, walking is excellent exercise for heart patients who have recently undergone bypass surgery for coronary artery disease. A few miles a day of such exertion doesn't seem to be too much (if you've been recently examined).

The other day, while picking up the early morning paper, I talked with a friend who had just finished taking a three-mile walk. "I get up at 5:30 every day, walk my three miles and feel great," he said.

Six months ago, this man had undergone bypass surgery for a serious coronary condition.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I'm not one for taking medicines. Yet, I'm a cooperative patient when my doctor thinks I need treatment.

My doctor has prescribed iron tablets. I take a full diet and wonder why I need iron. I'm five months pregnant. Can that be the reason? — Mrs. B.

Dear Mrs. B.: What may be sufficient iron for you ordinarily, may not be enough when you're pregnant. For one reason or another, your obstetrician has discovered a deficiency. For your good and the baby's, he has decided you need more. I'm glad you're cooperative.

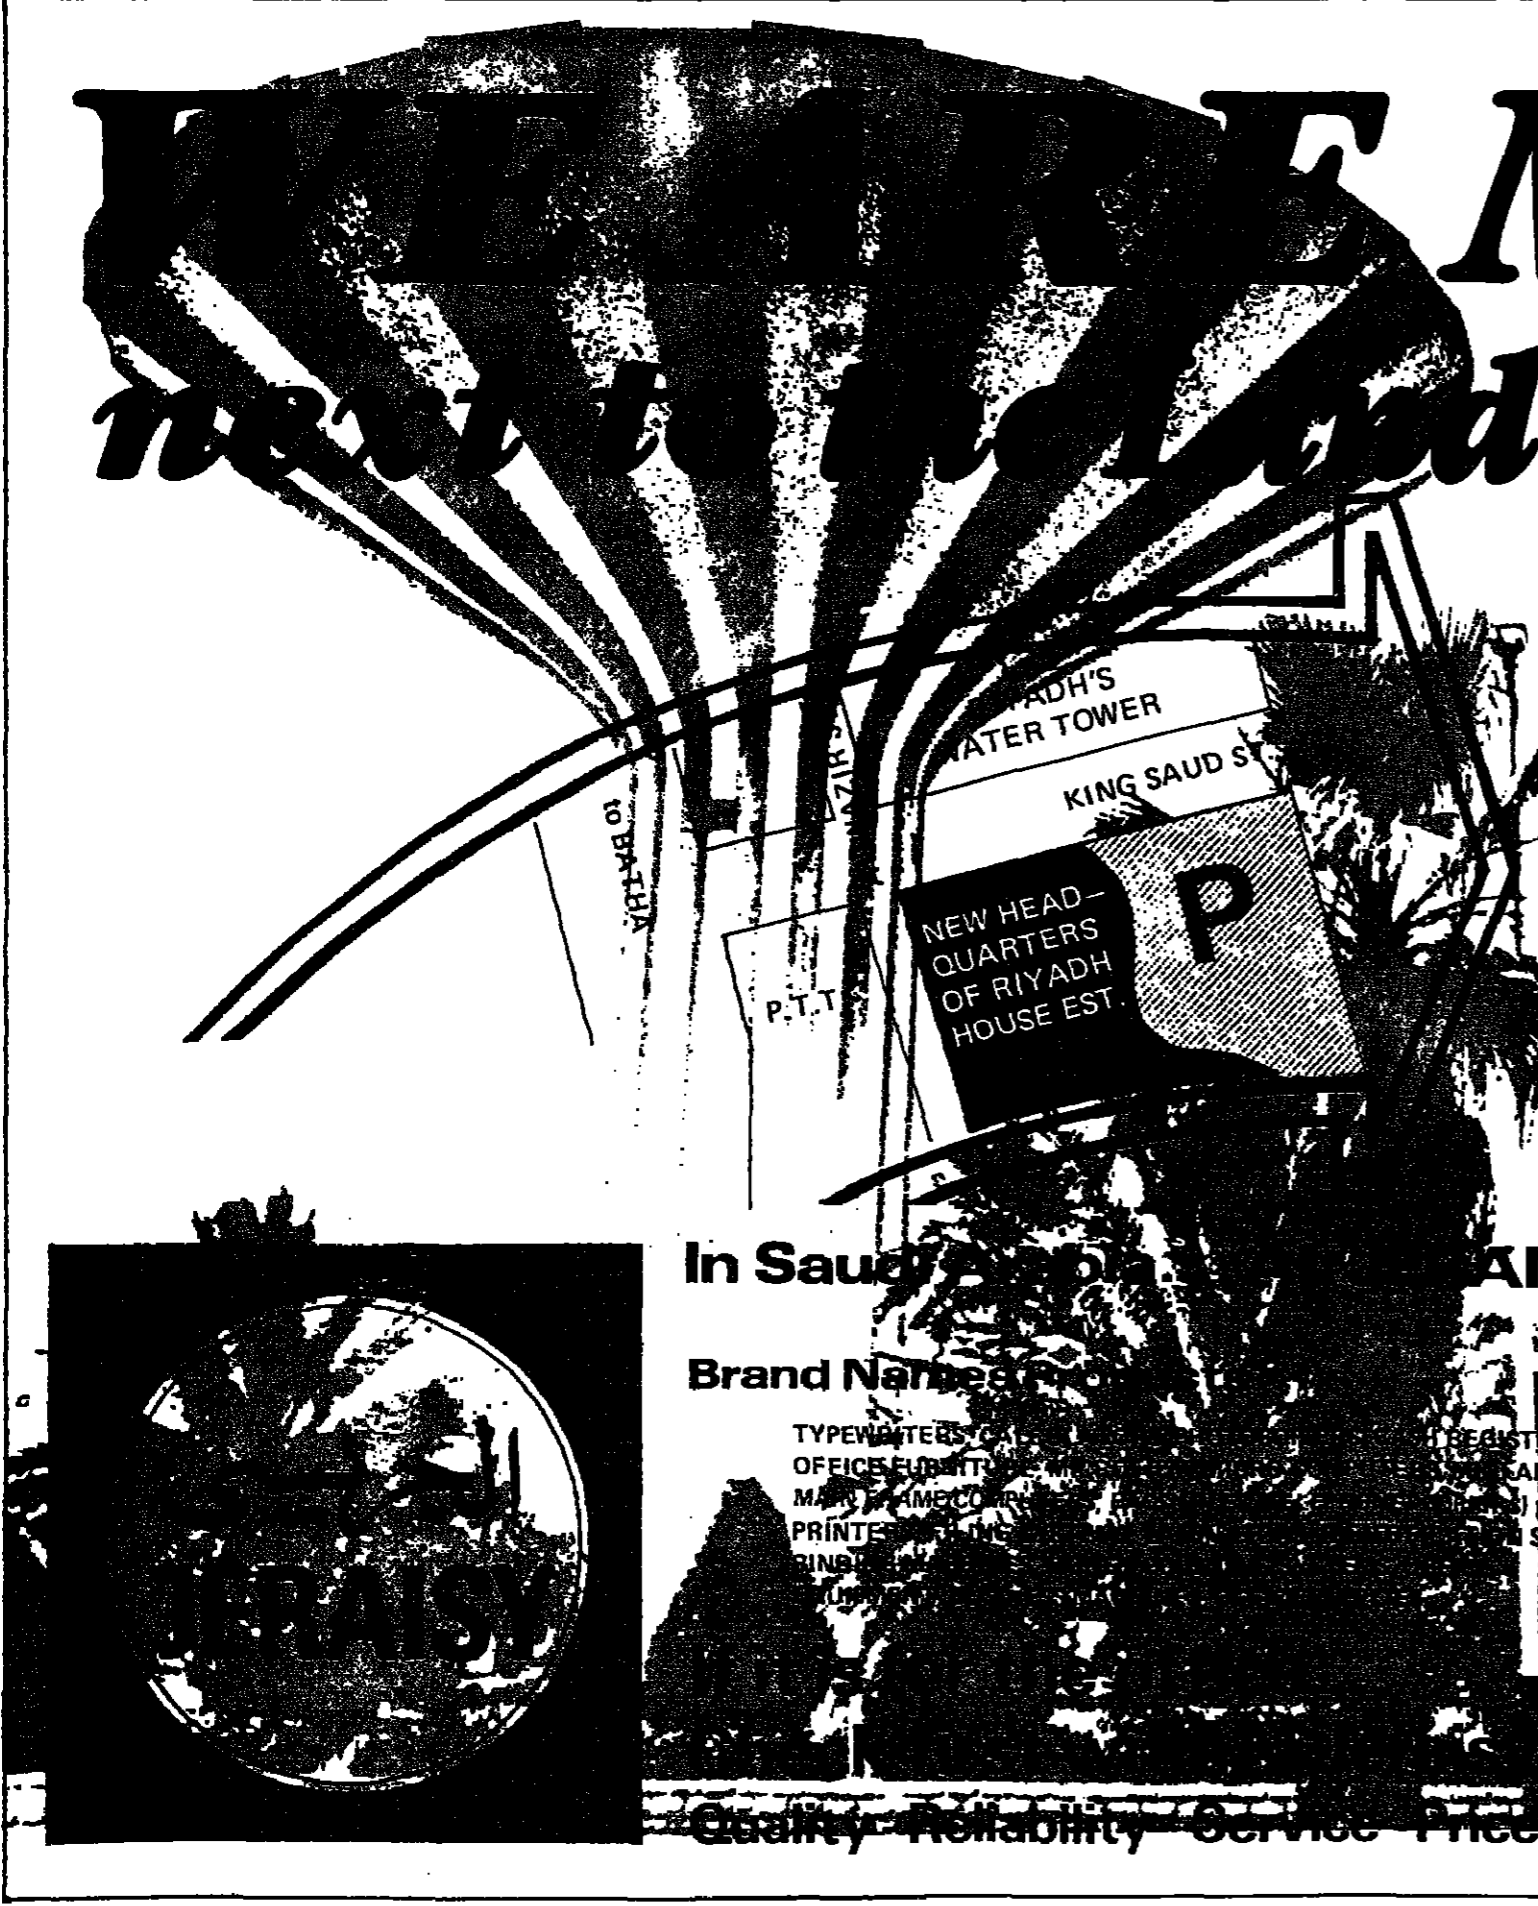

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have an arthritic knee. Hot compresses make it feel worse. Any suggestions? — Mrs. Z.

Dear Mrs. Z.: In a column a few months ago, I mentioned that some studies indicated excellent results in applying ice packs three times a day to arthritic joints. This may help you. But, better talk it over with your doctor before trying this therapy.

Vill consider technology aid

U.S. military links with China ruled out

SINGAPORE, June 19 (AFP) — The United States does not envisage active military cooperation with Communist China, though the relationship between the two countries has strategic importance of a general nature, deputy secretary of state Walter Secrest said here Saturday.

The United States sought normalization with China, he added at a news conference before leaving for Australia. "We see the importance of this relationship in many ways."

Referring to action under way to treat China as a friendly but non-allied country, so could seek technology and military aid from the United States, he said: "We are prepared to consider such requests on a case by case basis."

Secrest had led the U.S. delegation to six-day talks here this week with foreign ministers of the non-Communist Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN).

Meanwhile, a senior U.S. commerce official indicated in Peking Saturday that the United States wants to participate in the construction of nuclear plants in China but is still facing obstacles posed by American law.

Raymond Waldmann, assistant secretary of commerce for international economic policy, also indicated he did not think a recent decline in exchanges between the two countries was due to the dispute over the sale of U.S. arms to Nationalist China (Taiwan).

Waldmann, who left for home Saturday after a four-day visit, was speaking at a news conference after talks with Chinese officials.

on Sino-American commercial relations.

He said he stressed that the Reagan administration was studying the possibility of an accord on American involvement in building nuclear plants in China. U.S. law currently bars American firms from taking part in such projects because of China's refusal to accept the control and inspection safeguards mandated by the legislation.

Waldmann said the U.S. government was "acutely aware" that a decision on this matter could not be delayed much longer, but added that the details of a possible agreement had not yet been worked out.

A commercial attaché at the U.S. Embassy, Mel Searles, said that China was interested in the pressurized water reactor developed by the American company Westinghouse. France, which does not have the strict U.S. laws on control safeguards, has offered to supply China with the Westinghouse technology. Two other countries are also in the running, Britain and West Germany.

Sino-American commercial exchanges rose rapidly between 1979, when diplomatic relations were normalized, and 1981. But they dropped six percent in the first six months of 1982 compared with the same period last year. Waldmann blamed the drop on declining commerce worldwide. "I don't think it reflects anything more," he said, implicitly dismissing the Taiwan arms sales dispute as the possible cause.

BRIEFS

COSSING, New York (AP) — Pulitzer prize-winning author John Cheever, claimed as the Chekhov of the suburbs for his penetrating tale of American life in five novels and more than 100 short stories, died today. He was 70. His first novel, The Wapshot Chronicle, received the 1958 National Book Award. Its sequel in 1964, The Wapshot scandal, won the prestigious Howeller Medal of the American Academy of Arts and Letters.

BANJUL, (R) — Gambia's main opposition leader, Sheriff Diba, was acquitted Friday of high treason after being accused of involvement in a failed coup. Another opposition figure, Pap Cheyassine Secka, and four other persons were found guilty and sentenced to death.

MANILA, (AFP) — Philippine government troops killed 14 out of 42 suspected communist rebels in a two-hour gun battle that drove the latter out of the northern Samar provincial town of Palapag.

SANTO DOMINGO, (AFP) — Five persons were killed and more than 20 injured in a bomb explosion Friday at the Dominican Republic's election certification commission, according to official figures released Saturday.

NEW DELHI, (AFP) — The high court of the Indian states of the Punjab and Haryana Friday ordered the immediate release of a former health minister in the previous Janata government. Raj Narain, who was arrested Wednesday, Narain, 65, now a leader of the newly formed Democratic Socialist Party went on hunger strike in the capital of the two states, Chandigarh, demanding dissolution of the new legislative assembly elected last month and holding of new elections.

GUATEMALA CITY, (R) — About 150 persons demonstrated outside the National Palace Friday to demand a government investigation into how and why thousands of Guatemalans had disappeared in recent years. The protesters, mainly women and children, blamed most of the alleged kidnappings on the army, police and security forces.

PARIS, (AP) — The Duchess of Windsor, the American divorcee for whom King Edward VII gave up the English throne, quietly celebrated her 86th birthday Saturday bedridden in the mansion where she has been secluded for the past five years. The thrice-married Bessie Wallis Warfield Spencer Simpson is no longer strong enough to walk or read, said a close friend of the Duchess, who asked that her name not be used.

Cambodians' move hailed

PEKING, June 19 (Agencies) — China Saturday welcomed the announcement that the three main Cambodian resistance groups had agreed on a coalition proposal to oppose the Phnom Penh regime backed by some 150,000-200,000 Vietnamese troops.

Peking has been giving military aid and diplomatic support to the ousted Khmer Rouge regime whose 20,000 troops are carrying the brunt of the fight against the Vietnamese in Cambodia.

China also has been providing limited military aid to the other two groups headed by former Cambodian ruler Prince Norodom Sihanouk and his one-time premier Son Sann.

The United States Friday welcomed the formation of the coalition. U.S. Deputy Secretary of State Walter Stoessel made the statement at a press conference in Singapore.

Australia, New Zealand, Canada, Japan and the European Economic Community (EEC), which have had separate talks with ASEAN foreign ministers over the past two days, greeted the coalition as a significant step in finding a political solution to the four-year-old Kampuchean crisis.

Hinckley jury deliberates

WASHINGTON, June 19 (R) — A jury resumed deliberations Saturday on whether John Hinckley is guilty of trying to kill President Ronald Reagan or is innocent by reason of insanity.

The seven women and five men began discussions Friday after hearing the judge's instructions and closing arguments from lawyers for both sides.

U.S. District Judge Barrington D. Parker admonished the jury to "deliberate with fairness, impartiality and objectivity and not with sympathy, pity or compassion."

Hinckley, 27, has pleaded not guilty by reason of insanity to charges arising out of the March 30, 1981 shooting in which Reagan was seriously wounded along with three others. The jury heard vastly different descriptions of Hinckley during the eight-week trial.

Chief defense lawyer Vincent Fuller said Hinckley's attempt to kill the president resulted from a fantasy world in which he had thoughts of winning the love of teen-age actress Jody Foster and getting back at his parents.

"These were the acts of a totally irrational individual driven and motivated by a world he created by himself," Fuller said. Hinckley wept when his lawyer spoke of his "pathetic" behavior in trying to impress Miss Foster. Fuller urged the jury to focus on Hinckley's mental state leading up to the shooting and to put aside any passions aroused by sympathy for the victims since they were only "bit players" in his client's troubled mind. Chief prosecutor Roger Adelman responded to the defense in a tone of outrage.

"How dare he say to forget the evidence," Adelman shouted at the jury. He criticized Fuller's suggestion to ignore evidence that Hinckley put extra-deadly bullets called "devastators" in his gun on the day of the shooting.

"I defy anyone to go up to the family of Jim Brady or the family of any of the victims and say forget the bullets," he said. Brady is still partially paralyzed. "You can't do that," Adelman said.

The prosecutor said selection of the deadly bullets showed Hinckley's intent to kill people. He said Hinckley carefully planned the assassination attempt, knew what he was doing and was not legally insane.

Namibia talks likely

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania, June 19 (AP) — Chances of reaching a settlement on Southwest Africa within 60 days are "excellent," but the presence of Cuban troops in Angola remains a stumbling block, authoritative sources said Friday. Direct talks with all parties could be held by the end of the month, with New York a likely site, the sources said.

Leftists gain in Salvador

SAN FRANCISCO, (AFP) — Rebels in the eastern province of Morazan province appear to have had several successes in fighting off a week-long push by the Salvadoran Army's best troops.

Some of the elite soldiers themselves acknowledged that their morale had been hurt by the death Thursday of the Salvadoran deputy defense minister, Col. Francisco Adolfo Castillo, in what the government termed a helicopter accident. Rebels have said his craft was shot down.

Col. Castillo was on an inspection mission with the operations commander at San Francisco Gotera, Col. Salvador Beltran Luna, when the helicopter crashed. The bodies of the four persons aboard the helicopter were discovered Friday near San Fernando, 120 kilometers east of San Salvador.

The Farabundo Marti Liberation Front said on its radio station, Venceremos, that the helicopter was shot down. The government denied the claim. The rebels also claimed to have taken San Fernando Friday, and thus consolidated their control of the region. They already held Perquin, also in the northern part of Morazan.

Reagan to take stock of economic situation

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP) — The administration of U.S. President Ronald Reagan is studying the action of its predecessors in trying to decide what to do if the economy does not improve as expected, U.S. Treasury Secretary Donald Regan says in a published interview.

He also said interest rates are headed up. "I have a study on my desk .. of what other presidents did in similar circumstances," Regan said in the interview published in

Pakistan gets IFAD loan

ROME, June 19 — The International Fund for Agricultural Development (IFAD) extended a loan of about $12 million to the Pakistan to help increase agricultural production through better irrigation. The project loan which will benefit some 100,000 small-farm families throughout Pakistan is the first to be signed since the replenishment of IFAD's resources became effective Friday.

IFAD president Abdulmuhsin Al-Sudary signed the loan agreement here Friday with the ambassador of Pakistan to Italy, Abdul Waheed.

The on-farm water management project will be implemented in all four provinces of Pakistan. It includes the rebuilding of irrigation channels for about 2,000 watercourses as well as the desilting and clearing of some 10,500 other watercourses. In addition, land levelling equipment will be made available to farmers on a rental basis and demonstration plots will show farmers the effectiveness of increased water supply.

Saturday editions of the Washington Post. "We have to consider what our actions might be."

Top figures in the administration have been predicting an economic recovery and declining interest rates in the second half of the year.

However, if interest rates don't come down rather quickly, and unemployment hangs high, the obvious course of action (that) would be demanded, at least, from us by the Congress would be, do something, don't just stand there," Regan said.

Regan declined to say what measures he was studying. "What I am trying to do is to be ready in case I'm asked to do anything .. not that I'm suggesting it," the secretary said.

Fear of inflation is not holding up interest rates because gold prices, which rise in expectation of inflation, are falling, Reagan said. Uncertainty over deficits is not holding up rates because the stock market fell following Thursday's compromise on a 1983 budget by a Congressional conference committee.

Rather, he said the erratic growth of the money supply is to blame: "you have to say it's monetary. What else is left?" The policy of the Federal Reserve Board to restrict the growth of the money supply is correct. It's their practices that are leaving a lot to be desired," the secretary said.

On Friday, Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige said, the American consumer is leading the way out of recession through increased spending, suggesting the economy may already be expanding slightly.

Egypt strikes oil, 'rich deposit' of gas

MANAMA, June 19 (AP) — Royal Dutch Shell has struck oil in Egypt's western desert, a concession area close to the Libyan border, knowledgeable sources have reported.

They said the discovery at the Badr Eddin -1 zone was completed Feb. 7, when a well flowed a maximum 5,960 barrels of crude oil a day. These sources rated the crude as low-sulphur. Simultaneously with that strike, a "rich deposit" of natural gas and condensate also was discovered in the same concession area, said the same sources, who refused to be identified.

They said that Shell spudded another well in another concession zone, known as Sitra-1, a few miles south of the Badr Eddin zone. No details were available on the second well, which the source said was completed Feb. 22.

Strike disrupts Olympic flights

ATHENS, June 19 (AP) — Olympic Airways, Greece's national carrier, Saturday announced the cancellation of all of its flights over the weekend following a 48-hour strike staged by the company's flight attendants.

The announcement said the cancellation was decided "in order to avoid unnecessary harassment of travelers." A company spokesman said a total of 155 domestic and international flights were scheduled for the weekend.

A similar 24-hour strike was staged last Thursday, and the flight attendants union warned to go ahead with a 48-hour walkout if their demands were not met.

They demand salary increases and special allowances to improve their status in the company.

Wall Street Summer of despair stares mart in the face

NEW YORK, June 19 (AP) — Spring is giving way to summer on Wall Street with no sign of relief from the problem that has been plaguing the securities markets all year — high interest rates. In the past week, the money markets were moving in the direction of higher, not lower, interest rates, even though the economy remained in the grip of a severe recession. And stock prices slumped to their lowest levels in more than two years.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials posted five straight daily declines during the week, for an aggregate loss of 21.12 points to 788.62. The last time the average closed lower than that was on April 21 of 1980, when it stood at 759.13.

The New York Stock Exchange composite index dropped 2.20 to 61.74, and American Stock Exchange market value index was down 13.40 at 246.38.

Big Board Volume averaged 48.88 million shares a day, against 53.36 million the week before.

The concern that the markets' woes of the past couple of months have helped engender shows up conspicuously in the mid-year forecasts now being turned out by brokerage houses and investment advisory firms. "Sound stocks with outstanding growth potential are selling at bargain prices," says Standard and Poor's weekly letter, The Outlook.

"The question is: What will produce the incentive to begin accumulating these values?" Any significant market recovery, it says probably will require a break in the interest-rate pattern. But the firm quickly adds, "it won't be easy to get rates down much. The economy should be soon emerging from recession, aided by the midyear personal tax cut and social security cost-of-living hike. That will mean increased private-sector demand for credit. At the same time, the treasury will be borrowing heavily to fill the budget gap, and the Federal Reserve may have to contend with another bulge in the money supply."

"Any drop in rates, therefore, would have to come largely from a shift in psychology. The real key to lower interest rates is reducing inflationary expectations, shrinking today's historically wide gap between nominal interest rates and inflation rate."

Analysts at Bache Halsey Stuart Shields Inc. see "a modestly positive outlook for both the bond and stock markets over the next several years. We believe that the recession is basically over," they said in a recent appraisal of the mid-year outlook. "As that view becomes more common, the stock market will tend to rebound. But investors should be cautious about making a gain of roughly 30 percent in stock prices traditionally achieved in the months following recession-related market troughs."

The factor that Bache says could keep the market out of step with past patterns is the state of government fiscal and monetary policy. "The prospect of record budget deficits, coupled with the treasury's increased borrowing requirements starting this summer, has dulled investors' enthusiasm."

At this time of year, no matter what the stock market's recent record, many brokers start speaking hopefully of the chances for a "summer rally."

The brokerage firm of Drexel Burnham Lambert says a paucity of optimism is understandable these days. "Consumers and business executives alike are pessimistic. Confidence is tough to build in the face of disappointing earnings, eroding backlogs, layoffs and dividend cuts." However, the firm adds, "it is in times like these that the bottom is finally reached."

Japan says Iran project 'dead'

TOKYO, June 19 (AP) — The future of the joint Iranian-Japanese project to construct a petrochemical complex at Bandar Khomeini in western Iran is still very uncertain, Kazoku Yamaguchi, president of the Iran Chemical Development Company (ICDC) has said.

Yamaguchi told a press conference that the Japanese side considers the project effectively "dead" in its initial form. However, negotiations with the Iranian National Petroleum Company (NPC) are still underway with a view to continuing cooperation.

The recent prospects of an end to hostilities between Iran and Iraq are encouraging in this respect, Yamaguchi added. Construction of the complex began after an agreement was signed in 1971, setting up a private joint venture with a 50:50 division of risk.

Work had to be interrupted during the Iranian revolution in 1979, and then after a resumption, was suspended again because of the Iran-Iraq conflict when it was bombed several times.

The cost, initially estimated at 130,000 million yen ($520 million) had to be revised upwards to 730,000 million yen ($2.9 billion). ICDC and its main shareholder the Mitsui group are still determined to help complete the project, but not on the original basis, Yamaguchi said.

Bonn to extend E. Berlin credit

BONN, June 19 (R) — West Germany agreed a three-year extension of its interest-free 'swing' credit system with East Germany, Inter-German Affairs Minister Egon Franke said.

But the maximum volume of credits will be progressively reduced to 600 million marks in 1985 from 850 million this year, he added.

Official sources in East Berlin said the agreement was part of a package under which East Germany agreed to allow former citizens who fled to the West before the beginning of 1981 to make return visits to East Germany.

Gas pipeline project

U.S. sale ban on Russia stays

WASHINGTON, June 19 (R) — In a move aimed at tightening U.S. pressure on Poland's martial law government, President Ronald Reagan has extended a ban on the sale of equipment to the Soviet Union for a natural gas pipeline to Western Europe.

Reagan said little had changed in Poland to justify removal of the ban he imposed Dec. 20 two weeks after martial law went into effect.

His decision, at a meeting of the National Security Council Friday, overrode criticisms of U.S. sanctions policy from West Germany and France, the main supporters of the projected 3,000-mile, $10 billion pipeline to carry natural gas from Siberia to Western Europe.

The Dec. 29 ban, part of a package of sanctions ordered when Reagan accused the Soviet Union of involvement in the declaration of martial law in Poland, affected the sale of turbine rotors and pipe-laying equipment made in the United States. He extended it Friday to include equipment made by overseas subsidiaries of U.S. firms as well as equipment manufactured abroad under licence from U.S. companies.

President Reagan has long opposed the pipeline on grounds that it will make Western Europe dependent on Soviet energy supplies. He has said the West should not go out of its way to help what he has called a decaying Soviet economy. In addition, he is still pursuing a hard anti-Soviet line despite his recent initiatives to reach arms control agreements with the Kremlin.

Reagan has been calling for the end of martial law in Poland and a dialogue involving the suspended Solidarity free trade union

Tin producers mull new pact

KUALA LUMPUR, June 19 (R) — Ministers of the world's three major tin producers held informal talks Saturday night on their countries' future role in a proposed new international pact with consuming countries.

The ministers — from Malaysia, Indonesia and Thailand — will meet again Sunday for further talks concentrating on Kuala Lumpur's desire to pull out of the Sixth International Tin Agreement (ITA), official sources said.

The closed-door meeting follows the adjournment until June 23 of a United Nations sponsored conference in Geneva earlier this month, when Malaysia, the world's largest tin producer, would not commit itself to future participation in a new pact. Malaysia has already signed and ratified movement and the government.

U.S. officials said the decision would delay construction of the pipeline by up to three years and result in additional costs, which they could not estimate, for the Kremlin.

The Caterpillar Tractor Company lost a $90 million order for pipe-laying equipment and General Electric Company an estimated $175 million for turbine rotor because of the ban.

Both Thailand and Indonesia are expected to try to persuade Malaysia to stay in the agreement although only half of the consuming states have signed the sixth pact due to come into force July 1.

More than 80 percent of producing countries have signed the pact, which needs ratification by 65 percent of both consumers and producers to come into provisional force. Malaysia, Indonesia and Thailand agreed in May that a tin producers pact would be set up if the sixth tin pact failed to materialize.

Weekly commodities

Falklands fighting end triggers price crash

LONDON, June 19 (AFP) — There was a general declining trend in the commodity markets following the ending of the fighting in the South Atlantic. Gold fell to a near three-year low. Base metals also came under pressure, with tin and aluminium dropping to a five and four-year lows respectively.

Apart from gold, other precious metals also eased, with silver and platinum at three and a half-year low. Lead and zinc were at their lows for over a year.

Sugar remained dull. Cocoa (at a 12-month low), was depressed by the French franc devaluation which will encourage more offers from Francophone cocoa producers.

GOLD: Easier. Prices plunged to their lowest since August 1979. However, trading was quiet.

TIN: Weak. Prices slumped to their lowest since 1977 as the market was hammered again. News from Geneva that the United Nations talks had been adjourned until next week without finding an acceptable compromise on the new agreement (due to come into force July 1), set the seal on dealers' attitude.

SILVER: Weak. The market eased from the outset, touching its lowest since January 1979, in spite of news that Sunshine Mining, the biggest producer in the United States, was suspending production pending price recovery. There were rumors that recent falls may have been due to the U.S. Hunt Brothers unloading some of their silver holdings (estimated at 60 million ounces).

ALUMINIUM: Easier. After an initial fall close to its recent all-time low, the market steadied, before drifting a little lower in front of the week-end. There was another sharp rise in stocks (up 4,650 tons to 223,525 tons).

Demand picks up for tankers in Gulf region

LONDON, June 19 (AFP) — Activity improved on the tanker market this week as hostilities subsided in the Gulf area and the Japanese seamen's union gave permission for its members to proceed to Kharg Island.

Several Very Large Crude Carriers (VLCC's) were booked from Kharg, most of them with part cargoes at steady rates for both West and Eastern destinations.

VLCC's were also booked with half-cargoes for passage through the Suez Canal. Several clean ships also obtained employment, again in both directions.

Indonesian cargoes remained in demand, mostly to the United States but also to Japan and Thailand, while West Africa continued to attract attention, again mostly to U.S. ports.

The U.K./continent sector offered continued employment for the 60,000 tonners, and several were booked for the trans-Atlantic route. Clean cargoes were also popular.

But there were very few inquiries in the Caribbean, resulting in a build-up of tonnage. One charterer was reported to have had the choice of 16 or more vessels for his fixture. Clean carriers fared better than their crude-oil counterparts. The period market was at a complete standstill.

Financial Roundup

Dollar rises to new high

By J. H. Hammond

JEDDAH, June 19 — The closure of the European and American bourses Friday saw the American dollar reach new record highs against several currencies, notably the French franc which closed at 6,838 levels from 6,798 levels. Eurodollar deposit rates were generally firm despite some fall in rates at the close of the session. The medium term, three-month Eurodollar deposit rate was quoted at a high of 16 7/16 percent at one stage before closing at 15 15/16 percent. This compares with 15 percent levels about one week ago.

The longer tenors were also firm, with the one-year deposit at 16 1/2 percent level, but the shorter tenors were still depressed with the week-fixed at 14 1/2 - 14 3/4 percent interbank rates. The release of the latest weekly U.S. money supply figures did not affect the money markets, although the rise of $1.4 billion was less than expected. The money markets' feelings now, however, is that rates could go up by another full percentage point over the next couple of weeks, with the expected so-called "bulge" in the money supply in July.

Gold and silver prices fell to a record low with gold prices trading at $304 an ounce and silver at $5.06 — the lowest for five years for the latter metal with a $300 price tag in sight for gold, bullion dealers are nervously awaiting Monday's European opening to see if the decline will continue.

On the exchanges, the dollar's recent rapid climb has been described as "hectic and chaotic" by dealers who saw the American currency break record after record against the major world currencies. Despite strong coordinated central bank intervention moves against the dollar by the European authorities, the dollar seemed unstoppable. There is growing fear that the French franc might have to be devalued again within the European Monetary System but this might be resisted by the Mitterrand government that recently had to introduce unpopular measures such as increases in taxation and reductions in government expenditures.

The other currencies were not let off slightly either — the British pound fell to the lowest level since August 1977 to trade at 1.7375 levels while the German mark traded at 2.4670 levels — down from Thursday's 2.4590. The Swiss franc fell back in sympathy with the mark to trade at 2.1290 from 2.1180 levels, while the Japanese yen closed the week at 255.80 from 254.00 levels.

In the local markets, some sizeable liquidity injections brought down rial deposit rates in most tenors. The week-fixed rate which had been quoted at 14 - 15 percent Thursday, traded at around 12 1/2 - 13 1/2 percent Saturday. The other fixed deposits fell back by between 1/4 - 1/2 percent as banks in Bahrain and local institutions had their first full active trading day. The one-year deposit is now quoted at 14 1/4 - 14 1/2 percent but the one-month JIBOR is down to 13 3/4 - 14 1/4 percent from 14 1/2 percent level.

On the local exchanges, spot rial/dollar rates were active and traded at around 3.4315-30 levels at one stage, compared to Thursday's dull trading at 3.4300-05 levels.

BRIEFS

WARSAW, (AFP) — Polish freighters will collect 1.5 million tons of grain from Canada this year under an accord between the two countries, the Polish news agency PAP has said. It added that Canada had become Poland's biggest grain supplier, and had imposed no economic restrictions on Warsaw despite pressure from U.S. President Ronald Reagan.

NAIROBI, (AFP) — Ethiopian Foreign Trade Minister Wolle Chekole arrived here Saturday for a two-day visit during which he will review a bilateral trade agreement and discuss possibilities for expanding trade between the two countries. Chekole, speaking at a news conference at the Jomo Kenyatta international airport, said that bilateral trade now stands at $10 million.

LONDON, (R) — Ottoman Bank's talks with private Turkish investors and the Turkish authorities over turning its Turkish banking business into a local company are progressing, an Ottoman Bank statement said. But the talks, covering its network of 113 branches, are some way from being finalized.

PARIS, (AFP) — The French electronics group Thomson-CSF, which made a 70.4 million franc ($10.5 million) net loss last year, will probably not move into the black until 1983, group head Jean-Pierre Bouyssonne told shareholders here. He said 1983 turnover would increase sharply.

As Guerrero stands out

Dodgers down Reds in exciting tussle

NEW YORK, June 19 (AP) — Pedro Guerrero tripled and scored on Mike Scioscia's single in the 11th inning, lifting the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 3-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds Friday night.

Guerrero tripled to lead off the Dodger 11th. Following a groundout and a walk, Scioscia looped a single to right field off Tom Hume, 0-2, for the winning run. Cincinnati had tied the score 2-2 in the seventh. Terry Forster pitched one inning to pick up his second win against three losses, and Vicente Romo pitched the last inning to post his first save and extend the Dodgers' winning streak to four games.

Bruce Benedict drove in four runs with a single and home run as the Atlanta Braves beat the San Francisco Giants 8-3. Garry Maddox drove in three runs and Mike Krukow scattered nine hits to pace the Philadelphia Phillies to an 8-3 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Steve Rogers stopped the Chicago Cubs on six hits and singled in a run and Warren Cromartie homered to lead the Montreal Expos to a 6-0 victory in a game marred by a second-inning brawl.

The New York Mets raked St. Louis relief ace Bruce Sutter for five runs in the ninth inning, including two-run singles by Ellis Valentine and Wally Jackman, and posted a 5-3 victory in the rain-delayed opener of a doubleheader. Cardinals won the second game 5-4.

In the American League, Toby Harrah cracked a home run, two doubles and a single. Von Hayes drove in three runs and a pair of doubles and Miguel Dilocaashed slammed a two-run homer as the Cleveland Indians routed the Boston Red Sox 10-3.

Paul Molitor's two-run homer keyed a three-run Milwaukee third as the Brewers posted a 5-2 victory over slumping Detroit, the fifth straight defeat for the Tigers. Jim Palmer and Tippy Martinez hurled a combined three-hitter as the Baltimore Orioles won their ninth game in the last 11 contests, beating the New York Yankees 4-1.

Gerber nets winner for Roughnecks

TULSA, Oklahoma, June 19 (AP) — Tulsa's Franz Gerber of West Germany rammed home a left-footed goal and goalie Winston Bubose brought off three fine saves as the Roughnecks posted a 3-2 shootout victory in North American Soccer League action Friday night.

Gerber, the fourth overtime shooter for Tulsa, hit his goal to give the Roughnecks a 3-2 edge in the shootout portion of the game. Jacksonville's David Stride of England then bounced his team's final shot off the crossbar

Major-League hit, a solo homer in the third inning, and Buddy Bell and Lamar Johnson each drove in runs in the sixth, to give the Texas Rangers a 3-2 victory over the Minnesota Twins. Reggie Jackson homered for his 2,000th career hit and Rod Carew extended his batting streak to a club-record-tying 22 games as the California Angels defeated the Chicago White Sox 7-2.

Amos Otis and Willie Aikens each cracked two-run home runs in the ninth inning to lift the Kansas City Royals to a 4-1 victory over the Seattle Mariners. Alfred Griffin and Lloyd Moses drove in two runs apiece as the Toronto Blue Jays held on to nip the Oakland A's 6-4.

Scotland seen in poor light

SYDNEY, June 19 (AFP) — Scotland's Rugby Union captain Andy Irvine made one of the worst blunders of his career as Sydney gained a decisive 22-13 win at the Sydney Cricket Ground Saturday.

The Scottish fullback placed the ball for a penalty kick from the sideline but only tapped it and then lobbed over a pass as he veered toward the left wing. To Scotland's horror Sydney outside-center Gary Ella raced through to intercept the pass and ran unopposed for 45 meters to score under the posts.

Scotland's team manager Ian MacGregor said in disgust: "To give away a try like that was schoolboy stuff." The win meant that to secure Tulsa's victory.

Tulsa's Laurie Abrahams of England got the game's first goal at 9:53 when he knocked a header past Jacksonville goalie Peter Simoni. But Costa-Rican born Ringo Cantillo nailed a long shot past Dubose to tie the contest at 36:55.

The victory improved Tulsa to 7-9 for the season. While Jacksonville fell to 6-9. A crowd of 10,166 watched the game, but many did not stay for the overtime after rain and lightning began.

Sydney retained their fine record of being unbeaten against international touring teams since 1975. Roy Laidlaw's disputed last-minute try made the scoreline a little more respectable for Scotland, but Sydney still scored four tries to two.

Scotland's forwards failed to dominate the match as anticipated but they won sufficient possession to give their backs a chance of putting Sydney under pressure. It was a chance that the backs seemed loath to take. With the exception of Smart inside-center David Johnston, who made several exciting bursts, they lacked imagination and speed.

The visitors went ahead in the 16th minute from a five-meter scrum with halfback Laidlaw diving over for the first of his two tries. Sydney led 6-4 at halftime through a try by tireless breakaway Gary Pearce, converted by fullback Glen Ella. In the Sydney pack Pearce and lock Wijs were outstanding.

Sydney winger Mick Martin started poorly but scored tries in the 62 and 78 minutes to seal his team's success. Scotland's coach Jim Telfer was bitterly disappointed at this second defeat of the tour. Scotland also lost (7-18) to the strong Queensland team. He said: "We're still too sluggish and most of our attacks are predictable. Scotland play New South Wales next Saturday.

Devlin keeps ahead as stars stumble

PEBBLE BEACH, California, June 19 (AP) — Bruce Devlin, an old pro seeking golf's most coveted title in the twilight of his career, birdied the last two holes for a 69 and took 2-stroke lead Friday in the second round of the 82nd United States Open Championship.

Devlin, 44 whose last victory was 10 years ago compiled a 36-hole total of 139, five strokes below par. Jack Nicklaus and Tom Watson remained within striking distance — not as close as they'd like but still within range at par 144 — while an obscure tour rookie, Larry Rinker, chased an illusion into second place.

"A very sloppy round of golf," said Watson, who was in only five fairways and hit but 82 greens and still salvaged a 72. "I got away with murder out there."

Watson, a three-time British Open champ and four-time player of the year, made a

Indians' match ends in a draw

CAMBRIDGE, England, June 19 (AP) — The two-day cricket match between India and Combined Universities ended in a draw at Fenners Friday.

In reply to the undergraduates first innings score of 288 for seven declared, India's acting captain, Viswanath, declared at the lunchtime total of 354 for six.

Although Richard Ellis, hero of the Universities' first innings was bowled for a duck by Randhir Singh, the home side went on to make 234 for 7 before declaring in a hope of forcing a result. India had scored only 51 for one.

Earlier, Indian captain Sunil Gavaskar hit 20 fours in his 120 as the tourists took the lead in the first innings. The undergraduates set Indians a target of 169 in 72 minutes, but the challenge was too stiff. Roy failed again with the bat, making only three, as Shastri and Yashpal Sharma saw out the day without further blemish with 24 apiece. Shastri and Yashpal had made 93 and 55 in the first innings respectively.

Meanwhile, Nottinghamshire escaped penalty from the Test and County Cricket Board (TCCB) despite having their Trent Bridge pitches reported as unfit three times this season.

The committee criticized the champions on two counts — their wickets had too much grass, and they played on a track that had been used earlier in the season. The County's groundsman, Ron Allsopp, and cricket manager, Ken Taylor, attended the meeting and accepted the criticism.

The committee, however, contented itself with underlining the directive that championship pitches should be dry, hard, fast and true at the start, and issuing a new requirement that one-day tracks should favor batsmen.

10-foot putt for bogey and then a 20-footer for bogey. Nicklaus, at 42 acknowledged as the finest player the game has ever seen, grimly stalked to a frustrating 71 that again included many missed opportunities in his quest of a record fifth U.S. Open title.

"The open is an illusion," said the 24-year-old Rinker after he'd birdied the last three holes to finish off the best round of the tournament, a spectacular, 5-under-par 67 that gave him a 141 at the halfway point.

Rinker, whose credentials include $2,112 in money-winnings this season and three unsuccessful attempts at the tour school before he acquired his playing rights, called the national championship "just another golf tournament."

"You guys: The press build it up. The players have to key down and think of it as just another day. We have to have the illusion it's just another tournament." Devlin, however, had no such illusions.

After more than two decades as a globe-trotter who has won in his native Australia, France, Ireland and eight times on the American tour, he knows the importance of this event.

"Winning this obviously would be the highlight of my career," he said. "It would be a marvelous thing to do in the twilight of my career."

"I feel confident," said Devlin, now no more than a part-time member of the tour who spends most of his time as a golf television commentator and as a course architect. "I'm not going to be a fool and sit here and tell you I'm going to win the golf tournament," Devlin said. "But I've got a very good chance from the position I've put myself in. I've played beautifully for two days. There's no reason I can't continue. If the wheels come off, I'll just hang in there and do the best I can."

Willie Banks disappoints

KNOXVILLE, Tennessee, June 19 (AFP) — Willie Banks failed in all his objectives on the opening day of the United States National Athletics Championships here, despite ideal conditions.

Not only did he not beat the world triple jump record, he even failed to retain his United States title and finished third in the event, one of four finals contested on the first day.

Not many more than 100 spectators were in the Tom Black Stadium at the University of Tennessee to see Robert Cannon, whose personal best is 17.04 meters, clinch victory with 16.78 meters on the very last jump.

Earlier, Pail Jordan, with 16.73 meters, had already bettered Banks' best attempt of the day, 16.72 meters. The result means Banks will not be in the U.S. team to meet West Germany and Africa in Durham, North Carolina, next week, or the Soviet Union at Indianapolis in early July.

His poor showing was not the only disappointment of the day. Stanley Floyd, Jeff Phillips and Silvio Legnard withdrew from the 100 meters. Juantorena and Don Page from the 800 meters and Greg Forster and Tony Campbell from the 110 meters hurdles.

Meanwhile, East Germany had forged a big lead after the first day in a three-way athletics match with Britain and Belgium at the Crystal Palace Stadium, London Friday.

The Germans, winning 10 of the first 16 events and scoring six one-twins, led Britain 96-72 while the British were 117-57 ahead of Belgium.

Most of the British track stars, including world record holder and Olympic champion Sebastian Coe, were absent on a cold, rainy night.

Raj Kumar bags 5,000

In Peking, Raj Kumar of India won the 5,000 meters on the opening day of the three-day meet when Soviet athletes made a first appearance in China for almost two decades.

Kumar, clocking 14 minutes 0.69 seconds, won from China's Cui Yulin, who finished in 14:01.95. Lasse Viren, the legendary Finn who scored the 5,000-10,000 meters double at two Olympic games, was fifth in 14:55.45.

Among the other winners were Jitka Prouzova of Czechoslovakia and Eva Raduly Zorgo of Romania. Prouzova won the women's discus with a throw of 59.42 meters and Zorgo took the women's javelin with 58.24 meters.

Soviet athletes are also competing here, though political relations between China and the Soviet Union have been frigid for two decades.

Europe triumphs

GENEVA, June 19 (AFP) — A combined Europe men's team defeated the United States 111-92 in a match to celebrate the International Basketball Federation's 50th anniversary here Friday. The Americans led 55-54 at the interval. The return match is at Budapest Sunday.

Europe: Juan-Antonio De La Cruz (4), Drazen Dalipagic (24), Juan-Antonio San Epifanio (20), Michael Berkowitz (12), Ivica Jerkov (11), Juan-Antonio Corbala (8), Anatoly Myshkin (19), Stanislas Kropalak (2), Pier-Luigi Marzorati (5), Vladimir Tkachenko (6).

U.S.: Howard Carter (8), Phil Cox (2), Earl Jones (10), Michael Jordan (20), John Paxson, Michael Payne (10), John Revelli (9), Dave Russell (13), Charlie Sitton (4), James Thomas (6), Otis Grandholm (2), Jeff Turner (8).

As Argentina revives hopes

It was Maradona all the way

ALICANTE, June 19 (AP) — Diego Maradona, the 21-year-old soccer sensation, drove home two goals and set up another Friday, lifting defending champion Argentina to a stunning 4-1 World Cup victory over Hungary here.

The Group Two triumph means Argentina and defeated Hungary still have a chance to qualify for the second phase of the world's biggest soccer tournament.

Maradona's brilliant performance contrasted sharply with his lackluster show when Belgium downed Argentina 1-0 in the opener last Sunday. This convincing victory should erase doubts whether the South American, still pack the kind of power that earned them the title earlier.

Maradona turned on the pressure from the start with an acrobatic display in the seventh minute that sent Hungarian goalkeeper Ferenc Meszaros leaping for the save.

Daniel Berti steered home a Maradona header in the 27th minute for Argentina's first goal. Two minutes later Maradona rebounded a shot by Berti for a 2-0 halftime lead.

Maradona took a pass from Mario Kempes in the 37th minute and smashed home a stunning dipping shot that boosted Argentina's lead to 3-0.

Hungarian defender Laszlo Balint headed the ball towards Ardiles, who smashed it home for Argentina's fourth goal in the 61st minute. But in the 76th minute Gabor Poloskei drove in Hungary's only goal with a

For another goalless tie Poles hold Cameroon at bay

LA CORUNA, Spain, June 19 (Agencies) — Cameroon, playing in the World Cup finals for the first time Saturday recorded its second straight 0-0 draw, holding vastly experienced Poland in a Group One match here.

The slick Africans completely dominated the second half of the game, but missed a succession of chances to crack the Polish defense.

All four teams in Group One — Italy, Poland, Peru and Cameroon — now have drawn their opening two games. The two teams to qualify for the second round now will be decided when Poland plays Peru in La Coruna Tuesday and Italy faces Cameroon in Vigo Wednesday. If the last two matches also are drawn, the highest scoring teams will advance.

Cameroon, which opened its World Cup campaign with a surprise draw against Peru, showed that result was no fluke with another skillful attacking performance. Roger Milla led the forwardline with flair and was well supported by attacking midfielders Theophile Abega and Emmanuel Kunde.

The vastly experienced Poland playing in the finals of the world's biggest soccer tournament for the third successive time, were holding on grimly at the end and were saved only by some poor shooting by the Africans.

Poland dominated the early match and prompted by Boniek they kept possession and forced the Africans to pass back in defense. But the Cameroon players weathered the storm and by the end of the half they were driving relentlessly forward with their talented front-runner Roger Milla the spearhead in fast, dangerous raids.

Poland brought on Andrzej Szarmach for Andrzej Iwan after the Krakow striker had to be stretchered off after pulling a muscle in the 21st minute, and the moustachioed winger, who plays for French club Auxerre, was immediately in the thick of the action.

The minutes after coming on he blasted in a place-kick which the excellent N'Kono just managed to tip over the bar.

Smolarek sent a free kick to Boniek at the far post. The Polish captain nodded the ball back. Smolarek headed it against the bar, and Lato, coming in, headed along the ground from close-range. N'Kono, however, gathered the ball.

But at the other end Poland also had some narrow escapes as the green-shirted Africans boldly carved openings and began to look increasingly confident. Kunde hit a bullet in the 31st minute which Mlynarczyk only just managed to fist wide and Mbida slammed a long shot which shaved the post five minutes later.

Teams: Poland: Jozef Mlynarczyk, Stefan Majewski, Pawel Janas, Wladyslaw Zmuda, Jan Jolocha, Grzegorz Lato, Andrzej Bunol, Zbigniew Boniek, Andrzej Iwan (Andrzej Szarmach), Andrzej Palasz, (Marek Kurto), Wlodzimierz Smolarek.

Cameroon: Thomas N'Kono, Michel Kaham, Elie Onana, Rene Ndjeya, Ephrem M'Bom, Ibrahim Aoudou, Theophile Abega, Emmanuel Kunde, Gregoire M'Bida, Roger Milla, Jacques N'Gue (Jean Pierre Tokoto).

'A scream of fear that's dear 17'

By Pele
Special to Arab News

MADRID, June 19 — When you are 17 years old you do not expect to receive many unusual responsibilities in life. You are still growing up. Suddenly, they tell you to get your football boots ready. You are playing in the team. For your country. In the World Cup.

Then they start to look for your reaction and everyone asks questions. Are you nervous? Does it worry you? Did you ever think it could happen to you?

No, you did not think it could ever be true for you. There were your dreams, of course. Every boy footballer has his dreams. But to be able to play for your country at 17 and in the World Cup? Never... never... never.

You put on a front. After all, it's a man's world and you want to appear to be like a man. Like the other men in the team appear to be: Strong, sophisticated and accomplished.

But inside something is twisting uncontrollably. The boy in you wants to scream out "Can I do it? Am I really here? Is this really me? Will I die? Or will I live to be a winner?"

It happened to me in June 1958, in Sweden. When the world outside Brazil began to hear of the skinny kid known as Pele. When I played for Brazil against Russia in Gothenburg, in the World Cup, for the first time.

I know how it feels. This is why my heart went out to Norman Whiteside, the 17-year-old Northern Ireland boy — yes, just a boy still, don't forget — playing against Yugoslavia in Zaragoza, Spain, on June 17, 1982 (twenty four years later). In the World Cup, for the first time.

When I was asked what I wished most for the Irish boy who is already a professional with Manchester United in England, I replied that I hoped he would have my good luck and go in to receive a World Cup winner's medal.

After the medal presentation, when Brazil had won the first of their three World Cups by beating Sweden in Stockholm, I cried unashamedly. Even then, with the greatest victory to reinforce me, I was a boy again.

Thursday night in Zaragoza, the debutant who is several months younger than I was in Scandinavia, was not fortunate enough to be cushioned by forwards like Didi, Garrincha, Vava and Zagalo. But in other ways he was perhaps even more protected than I was, since the industrious Northern Ireland team seemed to prefer to let him view most of the proceedings from wide on the left where he was seldom brought into the game.

He was given a yellow card by the referee for one of the many tough tackles in a robust affair with the Yugoslavs, and if Norman Whiteside's debut was not conspicuous for much else he at least got a feel for the competitive atmosphere of the World Cup and may be given another chance soon.

The Northern Irish, I'm told, are delighted even to have reached Spain, such is their shortage of players, and they were clearly even more pleased to have secured a goalless draw in their first match, an achievement

German coach plans to strengthen midfield

GUON, June 19 (AFP) — The West German football machine, normally so well lubricated, suddenly seized up on Wednesday and the team's technicians have been working flat-out to get it running smoothly for Sunday night's meeting with Chile here.

The reasons for the side's 1-2 defeat by Algeria have been analysed and remedies have been devised which are practically certain to bring devastating results against Chile.

Tiredness, lack of imagination and over confidence are all factors in the Algerian defeat which will be absent Sunday.

Derwall it seems was planning to drop Felix Magath and Wolfgang Dremmler. Uli Stielike would switch to Magath's position. Wilfried Hannes would come in as a sweeper.

The move would be to strengthen the midfield in the manner of the Austrians, whose 1-0 victory over Chile on Thursday, was largely built on their central group. Up front, Klaus Fischer, brought on seven minutes before the end of the Algeria match, could replace Horst Hrubesch.

There is still a question mark over Karl Heinz Rummenigge, who has a nagging muscle strain, and star player Hansi Muller is definitely unavailable.

West Germany, like Spain, are suffering the consequences of being fallen idols, and they must beat Chile if they want to retain hope of reaching the second round. If they lose, it would be seen as a national catastrophe in Germany and a hard blow for European football as a whole.

Jupp Derwall...a stiff task

Many experts believe Germany will still manage to qualify. Hohann Cruyff of the Netherlands, for instance, does not think Algeria will reach the second round, and Austrian coach George Schmidt continues to believe Germany will head Group Two.

Spain makes two changes

Meanwhile, Spain and Yugoslavia both make two changes for their key Group Five match in Valencia Sunday.

Spain, held to a 1-1 draw by Honduras in right-footed shot from the line.

About 32,000 fans, most of them waving Argentine flags, watched the game under sunny skies at the 35,886-seat Jose Rico Perez Stadium. Some displayed banners with patriotic slogans.

The Hungarians, who buried El Salvador with a record 10-1 victory this week, frequently appeared disoriented and disorganized. They indicated early on they could not continue the pace they set against El Salvador.

But goalkeeper Meszaros braved the nonstop Argentine assault with confidence, making a series of spectacular saves as the ball relentlessly pounded into his area.

Lazlo Kiss, who earned a starting spot with three goals in the Salvadoran game, was benched late in the game as Argentine coach Meszoly made for adjustments that could pit some fire into Hungary's insipid attack.

Maradona, who is frequently compared to Pele, was involved in nearly every Argentine move of consequence. With considerable help from veteran striker Mario Kempes and Berti, who kept the Europeans distracted, Maradona had little trouble breaking away from the hapless Hungarian defenders who tried to double or triple mark him.

After the game, coach Luis Menotti hailed the victory as "A big step toward qualifying for the second round." The team was continually in top form tonight, and it showed that our players are very talented."

The Hungarian coach said only three of his players were in top form: Meszaros, striker Gabor Poloskei and defender Imre Garaba. "We used three attackers in the second half, hoping Maradona would tire by then, but it didn't work out that way."

Teams:

ARGENTINA: Ubaldo Fillol, Jose Olguin, Luis Galvan, Daniel Passarella, Alberto Tarantini, Osvaldo Ardiles, Americo Gallego, Diego Maradona, Daniel Berti, Mario Kempes and Borges Valdano.

HUNGARY: Ferenc Meszaros, Gyoso Martos, Laszlo Balint, Jozsef Toth, Rozsef Vargu, Imre Garaba, Tibor Nyitasi, Sandor Sallai, Tibor Rab, Lazlo Kiss and Gabor Poloskei.

which was largely due to the effortless looking goalkeeping of Pat Jennings, a veteran 20 years older than Whiteside, and yet himself playing in his first World Cup finals.

Equally, the Kuwait team coached by my old Brazilian friend Carlos Alberto were content to play a tie with Czechoslovakia. I would not want to take anything away from the man who helped Brazil prepare for the successful World Cup in Mexico 12 years ago — not the same Carlos Alberto who captained us onto the field and scored the fourth goal in the final against Italy — but I would be dishonest if I did not say how disappointed I was with the Czechs.

I always expect so much from them, for some reason, but the Kuwait operation, organized and enthusiastic, did not have to be exceptional to expose weaknesses in several departments of the eastern European team.

Before flying up to Seville again, for a second look at Brazil, this time against the tenacious Scots, I had a television of England's 3-1 win over France. Although Robson scored in 27 seconds, the fastest goal so far this tournament — will there be one quicker, I wonder? — the English looked nervous to me in the first half.

Platini and his French colleagues had the better technique, I thought, but later the persistent aggression of England took command and they also used the wings better. The English press have heralded the victory with superlatives and there is already talk of their team being serious contenders for the last four.

The Spaniards know they will never be forgiven if they lose to Yugoslavia and memories of their last match with the Yugoslavs cannot help them. An Ivica Surjak goal gave Yugoslavia a 1-0 win on this same Valencia pitch three years ago.

Yugoslavia have also been heavily criticized at home for the goalless draw with Northern Ireland but manager Miljan Miljanic was not unduly worried. "Spain and Yugoslavia are still favorites to qualify for the second round," he said. "And favorites are always under pressure."

"Defeat is the thing to avoid and every point is important at this stage," Miljanic said. "The small nations always pull out everything in their first matches and they might not be able to reproduce a similar performance," he added.

Their first match, bring in Jose Vicente Sanchez for Alonso Joaquin in midfield and Enrique Saura for Juanito on the right wing. The Spaniards will have three strikers — Juanito, Quini and Santillana — on the substitutes bench.

The Yugoslavs, who drew their first match 0-0 with Northern Ireland, recall defenders Zoran Vujovic and Zlatko Krmpotic for Nikola Jovanovic and Milos Hrstic.

It was learnt that, Spain have relieved their manager of most of his responsibilities. Federation president Pablo Porta has insisted that the national coaching board help manager Jose Santamaria pick the side.

NO DANCE THIS: Scotland's Gordon Strachan (left) gets the better of Gama Junior (No. 6) as he finds the gap past the Brazilian during the Group Six match which Brazil won 4-1.

Zico stamps his mark in Brazil's win

SEVILLE, June 19 (Agencies) — Three-time World Cup champions Brazil exploded into thrilling action Friday night, trouncing Scotland 4-1 in a group Six match, to book their place in second phase of the World Cup Soccer finals.

Brazil's compelling performance was marked by grace and power as the World Cup favorites made light of an early goal. The unruffled Brazilians, as in their opening match against the Russians, let loose their firepower in the second half as the brave Scots tried to battle their way back against the perfectly-balanced South Americans.

After Scotland took a surprising 1-0 lead through David Narey, midfielder Zico scored the equalizer and went on to mastermind a romp which featured superb goals by Oscar, Eder and Roberto Falcao.

Scotland's hopes of a place in the second phase now hang on the outcome of their final group match against the Soviet Union in Malaga Tuesday. If the Soviets beat New Zealand by two clear goals Saturday they will need only a draw in Malaga to pip the Scots on goal difference.

A tumultuous welcome from a near capacity crowd greeted the teams, with the ear-splitting songs of the Scots contrasting the deep rolling bass beats of the samba drums. And Brazil immediately, as if in answer to the rousing welcome, began with a flourish.

Scotland shook the Brazilians in the 18th minute with David Narey's fierce right-footer from just inside the box, leaving Brazilian goalkeeper Valdir Perez helpless. Scotland, 5-2 winners over New Zealand in its opening tie, could not have asked for a better start to the match.

Meanwhile, Brazil were having problems

Zico...masterminds attack of unwinding a composed Scottish defense with Miller and Hansen outstanding. But after 33 minutes Brazil finally equalized.

Souness was penalized near the 30-meter mark of the defending area and Zico shot his free-kick right-footed around the wall of Scottish defenders and high into the left hand corner of Rough's goal.

After the interval defender Oscar, moving up to add weight to the Brazilian attack, put his team ahead for the first time in the 49th minute, prodding a downward header past goalkeeper Alan Rough at the near post, following a corner from junior.

Zico, running at the Scottish defense almost at will, twice went desperately close to scoring before Eder made it 3-1 in the 63rd minute, chipping the ball delicately over the advancing Rough after collecting a square pass from Serginho.

Brazil's third goal even drew applause from the huge Scotland following. Falcao's goal, a ferocious left-footer, four minutes from the end was merely the icing on the Brazilian cake. Zico's equalizer was undoubtedly the turning point as agreed by both Santana and Stein.

TEAMS: BRAZIL: Valdir Perez, Leandro, Oscar, Luisinho, Junior, Cerezo, Socrates, Zico, Falcao, Serginho (Paolo Isidorio), Eder.

SCOTLAND: Rough, Narey, Miller, Hansen, Gray, Strachan (Kenny Dalglish), Souness, Watt, Hartford (Alex McLeish), Archibald, Robertson.

At least they have the right to be confident of England winning Group Four on the evidence presented so far by their next two opponents, Czechoslovakia and Kuwait.

Finally, I quote the answer of El Salvador coach Pipo Rodriguez when he was asked in a postgame press conference how he felt when his team scored their first ever goal in the World Cup finals.

His answer: "The truth is that it is a very tarnished satisfaction because the result has been very regrettable for us."

The result, you will recall: El Salvador 1, Hungary 10. Pipo's reply was certainly more worthy than the question.

Greenwood keeps same team

BILBAO, June 19 (AP) — England manager Ron Greenwood Saturday named an unchanged side to play Czechoslovakia in a Group Four match Sunday.

Czechoslovakia needs a win to stay in the Group Four chase after a 1-1 draw to Kuwait last Thursday. England, with two points after beating France 3-1, could be virtually assured of a second-round spot by winning Sunday.

"I know the Czechs can play much better," said Greenwood. "I will be putting fresh memories of Czechoslovakia into their minds and scrubbing out what they saw the other night."

To do that, he is showing his team a recording of Czechoslovakia's warm-up match against West Germany last April. The Czechs played well before losing 2-1 in the last minute. Sunday's match will be the first time in three years that Greenwood has repeated an opening lineup.

England will also field the same substitutes chosen against France, which means no prospect of a quick return for captain Kevin Keegan and midfielder star Trevor Brooking.

Keegan has a back injury and Brooking a groin strain. Greenwood said both players

World Cup tid-bits

SEVILLE, (AFP) — Brazil took Scotland by surprise even before the start of the match Friday when each player shook hands and handed over a memento to his Scottish opposite number. The Scots, who looked slightly nonplussed by this action, had nothing to offer in return.

VALLADOLID, (AP) — Belgium, West Germany and Brazil are the most likely to win the World Soccer Cup, according to Kuwaiti star player Abdul-Aziz Al-Anbani, also known as "Tiger Eye."

BILBAO, (AFP) — England manager Ron Greenwood denied that he had argued with Kevin Keegan and that the England captain had flown home to England. Greenwood said the Southampton player had a genuine back injury and was following a course of physiotherapy treatment in a Bilbao clinic.

SEVILLE, (R) — Oleg Blokhin, the top scorer in Soviet soccer history and a key member of their World Cup team, is free to join a western club, the vice president of the Soviet Football Federation said here. Vlachoslav Koloskov said at a press conference that Blokhin was worth twice as much as Argentine superstar Deigo Maradona, recently bought by Barcelona for a reported $7.7 million.

MADRID, (AFP) — Spanish prisoners are allowed to watch World Cup matches on television. A prison authority spokesman said 110 video recorders had been shared out among the nation's various prisons so the inmates could record games and watch them again at their leisure.

ELCHE, (AP) — Belgium striker Erwin Vandendriessche said the goal he scored against Argentina in the opening World Cup match was "the most important in my soccer career."

PONTEVEDRA, (AP) — Italian coach Enzo Bearzot says he never stopped screaming when his team played a 1-1 draw against Peru. "I didn't stop screaming from the bench... again we played badly against Peru," he told a news conference here following Friday's match.

MADRID, (AFP) — Tourist officials here say 300,000 foreigners entered Spain during the weeks before the competition or after the start. The officials said thousands of people have been turned back at border posts.

Andrettis scratched from Le Mans saw a specialist Saturday and "are not entering into the training schedule" for the moment.

Mick Mills, of Ipswich town, will continue to captain the team in Keegan's absence. Victory for England would put Greenwood's team into the second phase of the competition even if it loses against Kuwait in its last Group Four match on June 25. If England draws against the Czechs, it would either have to draw or beat Kuwait to go through.

The Czechs, meanwhile, traveled from their temporary base at Victoria, 50 kilometers south of here, to put in some light training at Izarra, an Education College outside Bilbao.

The chairman of the Czech Soccer Federation, Jaromir Tomasek, said that coach Josef Vengles was confident his players "will play much better than against Kuwait. "We can only do better," Tomase

Gromyko discusses weapons with Haig

NEW YORK, June 19 (AP) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko presented a detailed reaction Friday to U.S. President Ronald Reagan's package of arms control proposals in a five-hour meeting with Secretary of State Alexander Haig.

"We not only discussed the president's approach to these issues, we also discussed the Soviet reaction to them," Haig told reporters moments after the long meeting broke up.

Haig and Gromyko plan a second session on Saturday at the Soviet U.N. mission to discuss such regional issues as the crisis in Lebanon.

Haig said the Friday session was devoted to a discussion of U.S.-Soviet relations in general, but focused on the issues of arms control.

These include the four major proposals Reagan has made since Nov. 18 — talks under way on reducing medium-range nuclear weapons in Europe, the strategic arms reduction talks that began in Geneva on June 29, Reagan's proposals on reductions in conventional arms in Europe, and the so-called confidence building measures he proposed during his recent European trip.

Gromyko and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin emerged from the U.S. mission and paused on the sidewalk to shake hands and exchange pleasantries with senior U.S. officials. The talks ended shortly before 7:30 p.m. (2:30 GMT). Haig told reporters earlier he had "no expectations" of dramatic results.

In Moscow a Tass commentator took President Reagan to task Friday for claiming the United States had never been the aggressor and said his United Nations speech "can only puzzle or anger the world public."

Yevgeny Kiselyov said Reagan's assertion that "we were never the aggressors" was "a strange statement, to say the least, as if he were speaking before small children at some provincial American school."

The author went on to quote figures he claimed were produced by the Brookings Institute, "which can hardly be suspected of any anti-American sentiments."

Kiselyov said Brookings had reported that between the end of World War II and 1975 the U.S. military:

Started armed conflicts, resorted to force or threatened to use force on 215 occasions.

Considered 19 times use of nuclear weapons, four times against the Soviet Union or its Warsaw Pact allies.

Sent troops into action 71 times, and used its navy aggressively 177 times and the air force 103 times.

Allende analogy recalled at ILO meeting Fresh rioting erupts in Polish city

WARSAW, June 19 (AP) — Police in the southwest Polish city of Wroclaw troubled that city for the second time in three days, according to reports reaching here.

Sources in Wroclaw, Poland's fourth-largest city said Friday that rioting erupted Wednesday during a church gathering. The riots came three days after serious street clashes there Sunday marking the sixth month of martial law.

Local newspapers reported some 80 persons detained by police and injuries to police officers but gave few details. The clashes were not reported by nationwide state television or papers.

The new reports came as prime minister Jozef Glomp continued speaking publicly of expected visit by Pope this year which the authorities say hinges on "normalization" or peace and quiet here.

Glomp told a gathering in central Warsaw Friday night that Pope John Paul II should come here to "teach us and strengthen the way of peace as he taught the British and Argentines."

Ex-agent said lured to U.S.

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP) — A federal judge entered an innocent plea Friday for former CIA agent Edwin Wilson, whose attorney said he would try to prove the U.S. government illegally lured Wilson from a haven in Libya.

The burly former spy remained silent during a seven-minute arraignment before U.S. District Judge John Pratt.

After Wilson's attorney, John A. Keats, declined to enter a plea, the judge filed the innocent plea for the defendant, and later adjourned.

Wilson, 53, is charged with conspiring to assassinate, for $1 million, a dissident Libyan official in Egypt in 1976, supplying large quantities of explosives and timing devices to Libya in 1976 and 1977, and recruiting former Green Berets and other Americans to train terrorists in Libya.

After the proceeding, U.S. marshals led Wilson to an undisclosed site in the Washington area, where he is being held in lieu of $20 million bond.

Keats told reporters he was trying to develop information to show that Wilson had been illegally captured after being a fugitive since his indictment here on April 23, 1980.

Justice department sources have said one of Wilson's associates secretary helped him lure Wilson from his haven in Tripoli, Libya, in the hope of establishing a new safe residence in the Dominican Republic. But when Wilson arrived there Monday on a phony Irish passport, Dominican officials, acting in concert with U.S. marshals, denied him entry and sent him on a plane to New York city, where he was arrested.

Wilson's attorney Keats told reporters later his client had refused to plea because he was contesting the jurisdiction of U.S. courts in the case.

The prime's reference was to recent visits to Britain and Argentina by Pope just days before the British regained the Falkland Islands after weeks of open conflict.

Glomp spoke in the central market square of the "new city," a portion of Warsaw's historic district before a crowd estimated at 10,000. Small side streets around the square were jammed with police trucks and vans, but no incidents occurred.

Some observers here have expressed concern that continued outbreaks of street violence could rule out a trip by Pope this year if the authorities decide that his visit could incite crowds or come amid a potentially troublesome time.

In Geneva, Switzerland, Poland's labor minister said Saturday Polish leader, Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, could have met the fate of former Chilean President Salvador Allende — if "anarchic forces" had not been crushed by the military more than six months ago.

Antoni Rajkiewicz also said in a speech to the International Labor Organization annual conference that martial law was not intended to deny or "infringe human rights" but ... to create favorable conditions for the total respect for human rights, and in order to prevent the violation of human rights by anarchy."

Rajkiewicz spoke in the vast but virtually empty assembly hall where the Pope, in an address on Tuesday invoked the word "Solidarity" 47 times and deplored that workers' rights to associate are "severely threatened, often flouted."

ILO has also criticized the suspension of trade unions in Poland and called for the release of labor leaders interned or imprisoned since the military crackdown.

Rajkiewicz's reference to events in Poland and the 1973 coup that toppled the Marxist Allende government in Chile was oblique. "We will not allow a situation whereby my government, and the head of the government, are put in the dock, in front of some kind of committee of inquiry," he said, because "it did not wish to find itself one day in a situation similar to the one for which President Allende had to pay the price."

British liner to restart cruise

LONDON, June 19 (AP) — The Queen Elizabeth 2, back from the Falklands after duty as the world's most luxurious troop carrier, is packing up its helicopter landing pad and cleaning out the swimming pool in preparation for its first cruise to New York on Aug. 14.

Full-page advertisements in The Times and The Daily Telegraph on Saturday announced that the flagship of the British merchant fleet will be back in the cruise business just two months after returning from the most hazardous journey of its 15-year history.

The Cunard Line, the ship's owners, congratulated Capt. Peter Jackson and his 700-member volunteer crew who dodged Argentine warplanes and towering icebergs on the QE2's month-long journey to and from the South Atlantic.

"The greatest ship in the world will soon be restored to her full glory, ready to restart her sailing program," said Cunard, in announcing a new series of cruises through January 1983.

The 67,500-ton QE2, requisitioned by the government after Argentina invaded the Falklands on April 2, set sail for the South Atlantic on May 12 with some 3,000 men of the 5th Infantry Brigade. It returned home June 11, carrying 629 survivors from three sunken British war ships.

Former official shot dead in Ulster

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, June 19 (AP) — A former police inspector was shot dead in his car at Newry, County Down, Friday while his wife was driving him home from work, police said.

Albert White, 58, was gunned to death only 150 yards from his home from a passing car. Police said 10 bullets were fired through the windscreen at him. His wife was not injured. White was the 2,208th victim of 12 years of violence in this British province.

In another incident, a 50-year-old auxiliary army officer was seriously injured in the town of Armagh in southern Ulster Saturday when a bomb exploded in his car shortly after he started the motor, police said. The victim, an unidentified captain in the Ulster Defense Regiment, was undergoing surgery on his legs.

Bomb derails S.African locomotive

PRETORIA, South Africa, June 19 (AP) — A bomb exploded early Saturday, derailing the locomotive pulling 15 cars carrying an estimated 350 passengers from Nelspruit to Johannesburg, a railways police spokesman said. He said no passengers were hurt, but the engineer and his assistant were treated for shock.

Lt. Gen. Hannes Visagie of the South African railways police said sabotage was suspected. The banned African National Congress, which seeks the overthrow of white-minority rule, has claimed responsibility for a recent wave of sabotage attacks.

The latest bombing occurred as the train was passing a village, about 120 miles east of Johannesburg, about 2 a.m. The passenger cars were detached from the locomotive and arrived in Johannesburg about five hours late.

Four killed, 90 hurt as quake hits El Salvador

SAN SALVADOR, June 19 (AP) — A major earthquake shook El Salvador early Saturday, causing landslides and toppling houses south of the capital. Officials said four persons were killed and at least 90 injured.

The quake also was felt throughout neighboring Guatemala. Reports from the capital of Guatemala City did not mention casualties.

Relief officials said rescuers were working to reach the town of Comasagua, in La Libertad province, 24 kms south of San Salvador, believed hardest hit by the quake. The town, with a population of 12,500, was cut off by landslides and a gash in a major highway. Officials said 70 persons were injured there.

Two of the deaths occurred in San Miguel Tepezontes, 49 kms southeast of the capital, relief officials reported. Five persons were injured in the town of 4,700, the report said.

There was little sign of damage in the center of San Salvador. A spokesman at a city morgue said two persons died in a suburb when a wall collapsed. The Red Cross said it had treated 15 injured persons in the capital.

"It lasted about a half-minute, as if everything was going to fall in on you," a San Salvador police spokesman said.

Electrical power in San Salvador was cut following the early morning quake and had not been restored. Water supplies were severed in parts of the capital. Power stoppages also were reported in La Libertad and La Paz provinces.

The U.S. Geological Survey said in Washington that the quake registered 7.8 on the Richter scale, meaning it was capable of causing major damage. The tremor, which occurred 2:22 a.m. EDT, was centered off the coast about 60 miles south of the capital, the survey said.

Metal attracts fatal lightning

LONDON, June 19 (AP) — The metal underwiring of a woman's brassiere probably attracted the lightning that killed her as she walked through a London park, a coroner has concluded.

The body of Iris Somerville, 62, was found under a tree in Queen's Park in the Willesden district of northwest London after a rain storm two weeks ago.

At an inquest Wednesday, pathologist Iain West testified that a burn mark on her chest appeared to match exactly the pattern of metal reinforcing in Mrs. Somerville's bra. He said it was likely the metal attracted lightning to her body.

Good Morning

By Jihad Al-Khazen

I heard this story of a young man from our parts, who was studying in a Western University.

The lad was of the shy kind, and did not take well to being a foreigner. He had no friends and spent his time generally either at the classroom or studying in his flat. He kept this up for a time, but soon found the lack of social life very demoralizing.

He decided to make friends. Then he thought of that good-looking girl who always smiled at him in a friendly way in the college cafeteria, and made up his mind to talk to her next time he saw her.

The following day in the cafeteria, there was the girl sitting alone at a table. He took his tray there and politely inquired whether he could join her. She nodded he could, so he did. "Do you mind if I ask what subject you read at the university?"

Not the most scintillating of gambits, you can see, but it elicited a horrifying response from the demure young lady: "You idiot!" she screamed without warning. "I hardly know you and you want to take me to your room! What kind of girl do you think I am?"

The lad of course did not know where to hide his face. He stammered: "Surely there's some mistake. All I did was to ask what subject you studied here."

"Aha!" the girl screamed back, "so it's hotel you want to take me to and not your house! Have you no shame?" The lad's only reaction was to withdraw from the cafeteria, followed by looks of contempt and anger from everyone around.

Next day he went to the cafeteria again for lunch. And sure the girl was there. He wanted to avoid her but she rushed to him, all apologies. She's doing sociology, she said, and what she did the previous day was part of a project she was working on, which was concerned with how people behave when confronted by extreme and sudden embarrassing situations. She thanked him politely for being such a "good specimen."

The lad did not return the compliment. He had learned his lesson. "A hundred dollars!" he screamed. "This is daylight robbery. I know your real worth and it is ten dollars!"

Exit one discomfited sociologist.
